By Pat J. Kirwin.

THAT in the early days of Circleville, the fire-fighting apparatus consisted of a small hand-engine, hook and ladder and leather buckets. These buckets were deep and narrow, sloping down, and had thick leather covered handles. They were the property of the individual citizens, whose names were painted on the side. The ladders were common long ones, and the hook was made of wrough-iron, fastened on the end of a piece of rope.

The engine was a red oblong box on low wheels. On top at each side of the square box covering the air chamber was a lid hinged at that end. On top of the box were two or three feet of hose attached to the center, and when in use, the long copper pipe was attached to the hose. The pipeman stood on the engine and gave instructions.

The pumping was done by turning four long wrought-iron cranks, one at each corner and worked by four or six men. The water was passed along one line of men to the engine and the empty buckets passed back by the line facing them. When this engine was finally dismantled the running-gear became the running-gear of the dray of Gus Viney, negro porter of the Bright and Bierce or Haswell store.

This first engine was called the "Thames," and it was succeeded by the "Scioto and its hose-cart Niagara." This was a high-wheeler row-boat engine and the air-chamber was in the middle. The engine drew water through suction-hose attached to it. An organized fire company had charge of it. The firemen wore red flannel jackets, a belt attached to the lower edge and fire helmets. On holidays, such as the 4th of July, the members of the fire department along with the engine paraded in full uniform.

When a fire broke out, all the bells in town were sounded and everyone rushed to the scene. On April 1, 1852, the great Chillicothe fire occurred and the local fire truck was taken to the Ross-co seat to help combat the flames. Later the fire company of Chillicothe brought its engine to Circleville for a tournament.

Among some of the worst fires in the '50s and early '60s were the burning of the old infirmary on N. Court-st; the home of Gen. Joseph Geiger; the old city building; The Pickaway-co Savings Institute bank; the old Presbyterian and Methodist churches; the old home of Dr. N. E. Jones; the Griggs barn, and a factory at the end of Mound-st. At the latter, Prof. Humiston, a school teacher here, carried water in buckets along the roof at the risk of his life. He was a teacher of Dr. H. R. Clarke.

THAT the names of three Ohio counties were derived as follows:

Monroe-co. This county was named for James Monroe, fifth president, who, however, was not yet president when the county was formed in 1813.

Williams-co. David Williams, of New York, Revolutionary soldier who aided in the capture of Maj. Andre, the British spy, in 1780, is commemorated in the name of Williams-co. He also was with Gen. Montgomery at St Johns and Quebec.

Defiance-co. When Gen. "Mad Anthony" Wayne was fighting the Indians and British in Ohio in 1794, he marched up close to a British fort which had been built on American soil and built a fort facing it. Because of this "defiance" to Great Britain, the fort was named Fort Defiance and the name later was given a town and county in that vicinity.

WALL STREET, MARKET SHOW BOOM ASPECT

WORKERS ARE BACK ON JOBS

Banking Projects to Stabilize Agricultural Prices Reported.

POOL ALSO HEARD

Two and One-Half Million Shares Changed.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6—Wall Street and the stock market, stimulated by news of banking projects to stabilize agricultural staples prices and industrial revival generally, presented a boom aspect today.

One sign was the re-employment by brokers of more than 1,500 workers laid off during retrenchment periods. With security prices rising and activity in the markets increased, their skeleton staffs were swamped.

Financial district stores and restaurants also were reported to have put more persons in jobs to meet a suddenly growing business.

POOL ANNOUNCED

Spurt in security and commodities prices came from the announcement of the proposed $30,000,000 pool to stabilize wheat and cotton prices as well as that of other staples.

The pool planned to negotiate for the vast supply now held by the Federal Farm board, buying its wheat and tieing up the cotton. Wall Street observers were certain the board would readily cooperate in such a movement.

After this is accomplished, financiers believed, pool operations in wheat and cotton would start.

It was explained with the action of the board indefinite as at present, when its policy to sell large quantities of its stores on bulges, the commodities market must necessarily be somewhat chaotic, so stabilization operations would depend on purchase of the board's holdings or an understanding with it about the disposal of its supplies.

RISING AND ACTIVE

The stock market yesterday was rising and active, altogether 2,684,000 shares changed hands. The advance in stocks brought the average of prices to the highest level for the current recovery movement.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6. —A definite announcement of the organization of the $5,000,000 commodity pool will be made Monday it was learned today.

A special committee of bankers appointed by the New York clearing house is working on the plans of organization. One meeting has already been held others will be held over the week end.

TO LOAN MONEY

The proposed pool for corporation will be paterned somewhat along the lines of the $100,000,000 bond "pool". Money will be loaned for the purpose of commodities or inventory by manufacturers. Loan provisions are expected to be liberal.

MAIL SERVICE NOW SATISFIES

Villages of Western Part of County and Others Pleased With Star Route.

Mt. Sterling, Derby and Orient residents are again satisfied by the mail service they are receiving following numerous protests of the Baltimore & Ohio service by freight train.

A postal star route from Washington C. H. to Columbus has been established, the mail being carried by bus between the two cities and distributed at Mt. Sterling, Harrisburg, Orient, Derby, Bloomingburg, Madison Mills, Cook Station, Briggsdale and other small villages.

The bus leaves the union station in Columbus each morning except Sunday at 6:45 o'clock reaching Washington C. H. at 9 a. m., making the return trip at 4:15 p. m. and reaching Columbus at 6:30 p. m.

The route was established this week after residents of the affected villages signed a protest petition against the government using the B. & O. freight train for first class mail service. Patrons claimed the freight did not arrive until noon or after, too late for business usage.

The petition was sent to Congressman Brand the U. S. post office at Washington by C. M. Neff, Mt. Sterling's enterprising mayor.

HEDGES FINES TRIO ON DRUNK CHARGES

Gilmore Brothers of Darbyville Attempt To Cut Marshal of Village.

Mayor B. T. Hedges handed out three fines with sentences to the Columbus workhouse attached when three men pleaded guilty to charges of intoxication and disorderly conduct, Saturday.

Dan and Ira Gilmore Darbyville brothers, and Chauncey Nungster, of Whisler, were each fined $100 and costs and sent to the workhouse until fines and costs are paid.

The Gilmores were arrested at Darbyville after one of them was alleged to have tried to cut the marshal of the village. The marshal fired three shots at him, missing him each time. Deputy Sheriffs Miller Fissell and Ray Armstrong assisted in the arrests.

Deputies Bryan Custer and Armstrong arrested Nungster at Whisler.

HOOKS IN FINGERS

Albert Gates of the Goosepond-pk and a man named Atledge had fish-hooks removed from their fingers by a local physician Friday afternoon.

Frank Jenkins, arrested on an illegal possession charge, was released from jail on agreement to leave the county.

COMPTON SUFFERS BROKEN SHOULDER

William Compton, 69, of W. Main-st, suffered a fractured left shoulder when he fell from a 25-foot straw rick at the Container Corporation Thursday, an X-ray taken at Berger hospital Friday afternoon disclosed.

Mr. Compton remained at the hospital for treatment

GREER RELEASED

Marion Greer, 21, of East Ringgold, was released from the county jail Saturday when he settled a check charge filed by Marcus Rife of Walnut-twp.

FIGHT AGAINST DEATH CHARGE STARTS TODAY

Habeus Corpus Proceedings For Ab Walker Begin This Afternoon.

LIBBY TO APPEAR

Fathers Says He Wants to Cooperate in Case.

FIGHT AGAIN

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Aug. 6.—Solicitor Carlysle Higgins almost immediately after a habeus corpus writ was argued before Superior Court Judge A. M. Stock today agreed for the release on bail of Ab Walker jointly indicted with Libby Holman Reynolds for the murder of her young husband.

The surprise move by the solicitor prevented the new secret evidence gathered since the mystery death of Smith Reynolds from being revealed to defense council.

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Aug. 6.—The opening gun in the battle against the joint indictment of Ab Walker, and Libby Holman Reynolds, charged with the murder of Smith Reynolds, youthful millionaire, was touched off today.

A habeas corpus writ was obtained by Bailey Lipfert, counsel for Ab Walker, which will be argued before Judge A. M. Stack, of superior court, at noon today.

Meanwhile, two local attorneys engaged by Alfred Holman, father of Libby, indicated that the Broadway actress would surrender to authorities "within two or three days."

The legal move will strongly affect the case of both defendants as it will cause the evidence on which the grand jury returned the murder indictments to be brought to light.

SPECIFIC CHARGE

The court will later be asked to set the specific charge against Walker based on the evidence shown by the authorities.

If the charge is lowered from first degree murder to second degree murder, or manslaughter, a motion for bail for Walker will be made.

A first degree murder charge does not permit any bail to be granted a defendant.

The ruling on the habeas corpus writ will necessarily affect the status of Libby, jointly indicted for the murder with Walker.

The writ formally called upon Sheriff Transou Scott to produce Walker in court. The 19-year-old defendant has been in jail since the indictment was brought in by the grand jury.

Benet Polkoff and William Graves, local counsel for Libby, after a long conference with Holman, made the following announcement:

"Mr. Alfred Holman, father of Mrs. Smith Reynolds, came to Winston-Salem today in the hope that he might be able to arrange bond for his daughter's appearance here at such a time as the court might direct and thereby spare his daughter the discomfort of an arduous journey in her present condition. She is still suffering from shock and is an expectant mother.

"PICKAWAY-CO'S HERO" WILL BE SHOWN IN TUESDAY'S PREMIERE

Camera Work On The Herald's Comedy Being Completed By Director; Film Will Be Returned After Developing.

Final scenes of The Herald's movie, "Pickaway-Co's Hero" were filmed today and the picture will be completed and ready for its first showing at the Cliftona Theatre next Tuesday. Many comic scenes were taken yesterday and today at the Allen Thornton home in Mountclair Addition, which is used to represent the palatial home of Mr. and Mrs. Henpeck.

Each member of the cast did his or her part well, and the director, Don Newland, was highly satisfied with the scenes taken at the Thornton home. The scene shows the hero, Billie Brown, calling on Baby Ethel who is none other than the beautiful Miss Eleanor Anderson, at the Henpeck home. Baby Ethel is the daughter of Mr. Henpeck's college chum and is spending a vacation at the Henpeck mansion. The 'hero' endeavoring to win the approval of Henpeck, offers him a supposedly good cigar. Mr. Henpeck seems to enjoy the same (which he thinks good to the last puff) when all of a sudden the cigar explodes, coloring old Henpeck's face to an ashen hue. This bitterly enrages Henpeck, who picks up the hero bodily and tosses him headforemost from the mansion. The scene carries a great amount of comedy that borders on the farcial degree.

TAKEN IN HOME

The second scene taken at the Thornton home finds Mrs. Henpeck away behind in her household duties. Needing assistance she starts on the hunt of her husband and finds him asleep beside the garage. Grabbing a pail of water and spinning it over head she throws it in true movie style, the pail of water striking its mark and landing on Henpeck's head, giving him a complete dousing.

One of the outstanding characters of the play is Jeanne Crowe as "Katrinka, the country flapper." She is the real comedian of the plot and will furnish witnesses of the picture many hearty laughs.

The cast worked long and diligently Friday to complete the interior scenes. Another comic scene was taken at the railroad station, showing Baby Ethel returning from a trip. Mr. Henpeck and Billy Brown meet her at the station with the baby and car-

SHERIFF SALE GAIN IS HIGH

An amazing increase in sale of properties at sheriff's sales is noted in a report of his office's transactions made by Sheriff Charles H. Radcliff to the county commissioners.

Last year, 1931, saw more sales and a larger amount of money exchanged in the transactions than any time in recent years. In that year 16 sales were conducted at a total figure of $111,692.36.

The present year promises more sales when 12 had been held during the first half of the 12-month. The sum totalled only $54,039.39 less than half as much as in 1931.

Figures from 1924 until 1930 follow:

1924, five sales for $37,710.78; 1925, six sales, for $73,698.03; 1926, 13 sales for $85,273.45; 1927, 10 sales, for $56,172.54, 1928, eight sales, for $48,546.15; 1929, eight sales, for $44,891.94; 1930, 13 sales for $73,912.58

Chief Deputy Byron Custer and Deputy Bob Armstrong handle the greater portion of the sales in the office.

KIDNAPERS OF BANKER CAPTURED

Italians Grilled by Police After John Colegrove Is Taken.

FEAR MAN SLAIN

Bloodstains Found in Car By Officers.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 6.—A manhunt for the kidnapers and possible murderers of John B. Colegrove, 65-year-old banker, culminated here today in the capture of Anelita Tuzzuoli, 32, of Detroit, and James Damaconi, 38, of Devereaux Heights, Ill.

The two men and Anthony Damaconi, brother of James, had been hunted since late last night when Colegrove was dragged out of his home at Taylorville, 26 miles from here, and carried off in an automobile.

FEAR MAN DEAD

Immediately following the arrest of the two men police and sheriff's deputies organized a search for the banker. They feared he might have been slain.

Damaconi and Tuzzuoli were arrested in an automobile which, according to authorities, resembled the machine in which Colegrove was spirited away from his Taylorville home. Bloodstains were found on the car, police said.

Colegrove was under a one to three year prison sentence following conviction in connection with the failure of the J. B. Colegrove and Company State Bank of Taylorville, a $1,000,000 institution. He was found guilty of accepting deposits when he knew the bank was insolvent.

A previous trial for embezzlement ended in conviction and reversal on appeal and a second trial on the same charge resulted in his acquittal.

CLAIM REVENGE

The kidnaping, police believed, may have been engineered by disgruntled depositors who may have tortured the elderly banker in an effort to make him reveal the hiding place of money which he was charged during his trial with having hoarded.

Taylorville police who rushed to Colegrove's home after the abduction found evidences of a terrific struggle with furniture upset and bloodstains on the floor. Neighbors noted the license number of the kidnaper's car which started police on their hunt.

Damaconi and Tuzzuoli were subjected to an all-night grilling. Damaconi, police said, was believed to have lost $5,000 in the failure of Colegrove's bank.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 6. — A virtual admission that prohibition enforcement was slowly failing had been made here today by none other than State Prohibition Commissioner Edmund Mathews.

Appearing before the joint public hearing being held by Gov. George White's salary reduction committee and the senate economy committee, Director Mathews declared that "the courts and public in general are losing interest in prohibition enforcements."

Asked point-blank by members of the committee if prohibition could be enforced, Mathews replied:

"Only inasmuch as the people are interested in it."

MAIL SERVICE NOW SATISFIES

Villages of Western Part of County and Others Pleased With Star Route .

Mt. Sterling, Derby and Orient residents are again satisfied by the mail service they are receiving following numerous protests of the Baltimore & Ohio service by freight train.

A postal star route from Washington C. H. to Columbus has been established, the mail being carried by bus between the two cities and distributed at Mt. Sterling, Harrisburg, Orient, Derby, Bloomingburg, Madison Mills, Cook Station, Briggsdale and other small villages.

The bus leaves the union station in Columbus each morning except Sunday at 6:45 o'clock reaching Washington C. H. at 9 a. m., making the return trip at 4:15 p. m. and reaching Columbus at 6:30 p. m.

The route was established this week after residents of the affected villages signed a protest petition against the government using the B. & O. freight train for first class mail service. Patrons claimed the freight did not arrive until noon or after, too late for business usage.

The petition was sent to Congressman Brand the U. S. post office at Washington by C. M. Neff, Mt. Sterling's enterprising mayor.

HEDGES FINES TRIO ON DRUNK CHARGES

Gilmore Brothers of Darbyville Attempt To Cut Marshal of Village.

Mayor B. T. Hedges handed out three fines with sentences to the Columbus workhouse attached when three men pleaded guilty to charges of intoxication and disorderly conduct, Saturday.

Dan and Ira Gilmore, Darbyville brothers, and Chauncey Nungster, of Whisler, were each fined $100 and costs and sent to the workhouse until fines and costs are paid.

The Gilmores were arrested at Darbyville after one of them was alleged to have tried to cut the marshal of the village. The marshal fired three shots at him, missing him each time. Deputy Sheriffs Miller Fissell and Bob Armstrong assisted in the arrests.

Deputies Bryan Custer and Armstrong arrested Nungster at Whisler.

HOOKS IN FINGERS

Albert Gates of the Goosepondpk and a man named Arledge had fish-hooks removed from their fingers by a local physician Friday afternoon.

Frank Jenkins, arrested on an illegal possession charge, was released from jail on agreement to leave the county.

COMPTON SUFFERS BROKEN SHOULDER

William Compton, 69, of W. Main-st, suffered a fractured left shoulder when he fell from a 25-foot straw rick at the Container Corporation Thursday, an X-ray taken at Berger hospital Friday afternoon disclosed.

Mr. Compton remained at the hospital for treatment.

GREER RELEASED

Marion Greer, 21, of East Ringgold, was released from the county jail Saturday when he settled a check charge filed by Marcus Rife of Walnut-twp.

FIGHT AGAINST DEATH CHARGE STARTS TODAY

Habeus Corpus Proceedings For Ab Walker Begin This Afternoon.

LIBBY TO APPEAR

Fathers Says He Wants to Cooperate in Case.

FIGHT AGAIN

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Aug. 6.—Solicitor Carlysle Higgins almost immediately after a habeus corpus writ was argued before Superior Court Judge A. M. Stock today agreed for the release on bail of Ab Walker jointly indicted with Libby Holman Reynolds for the murder of her young husband.

The surprise move by the solicitor prevented the new secret evidence gathered since the mystery death of Smith Reynolds from being revealed to defense council.

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Aug. 6.—The opening gun in the battle against the joint indictment of Ab Walker, and Libby Holman Reynolds, charged with the murder of Smith Reynolds, youthful millionaire, was touched off today.

A habeas corpus writ was obtained by Bailey Lipfert, counsel for Ab Walker, which will be argued before Judge A. M. Stack, of superior court, at noon today.

Meanwhile, two local attorneys engaged by Alfred Holman, father of Libby, indicated that the Broadway actress would surrender to authorities "within two or three days."

The legal move will strongly affect the case of both defendants as it will cause the evidence on which the grand jury returned the murder indictments to be brought to light.

SPECIFIC CHARGE

The court will later be asked to set the specific charge against Walker based on the evidence shown by the authorities.

If the charge is lowered from first degree murder to second degree murder, or manslaughter, a motion for bail for Walker will be made.

A first degree murder charge does not permit any bail to be granted a defendant.

The ruling on the habeas corpus writ will necessarily affect the status of Libby, jointly indicted for the murder with Walker.

The writ formally called upon Sheriff Transou Scott to produce Walker in court. The 19-year-old defendant has been in jail since the indictment was brought in by the grand jury.

Benet Polkoff and William Graves, local counsel for Libby, after a long conference with Holman, made the following announcement:

"Mr. Alfred Holman, father of Mrs. Smith Reynolds, came to Winston-Salem today in the hope that he might be able to arrange bond for his daughter's appearance here at such a time as the court might direct and thereby spare his daughter the discomfort of an arduous journey in her present condition. She is still suffering from shock and is an expectant mother.

FATHER OF FIVE DIES IN STREAM

DELAWARE, Aug. 6.—James Sullivan, 36, the father of five children, the youngest three weeks old, was dead here today after a swimming excursion. He dove into the Olentangy river and failed to come up. His body was recovered by firemen.

Hope to Spend Week in Air

Almost ready for their long joy ride, Mrs. Frances Harrell Marsalis (in cockpit) and Mrs. Louise McP. Thaden are shown as they made a final check of their Curtiss Thrush monoplane before taking off at New York in an attempt to break the world's endurance record for women fliers. The record is 120 hours and Mrs. Marsalis and her partner are determined to stay up 168 hours, a full week.

"PICKAWAY-CO'S HERO" WILL BE SHOWN IN TUESDAY'S PREMIERE

Camera Work On The Herald's Comedy Being Completed By Director; Film Will Be Returned After Developing.

Final scenes of 'The Herald's movie, "Pickaway-Co's Hero" were filmed today and the picture will be completed and ready for its first showing at the Cliftona Theatre next Tuesday. Many comic scenes were taken yesterday and today at the Allen Thornton home in Mountclair Addition, which is used to represent the palatial home of Mr. and Mrs. Henpeck.

Each member of the cast did his or her part well, and the director, Don Newland, was highly satisfied with the scenes taken at the Thornton home. The scene shows the hero, Billie Brown, calling on Baby Ethel who is none other than the beautiful Miss Eleanor Anderson, at the Henpeck home. Baby Ethel is the daughter of Mr. Henpeck's college chum and is spending a vacation at the Henpeck mansion. The 'hero' endeavoring to win the approval of Henpeck, offers him a supposedly good cigar. Mr. Henpeck seems to enjoy the same (which he thinks good to the last puff) when all of a sudden the cigar explodes, coloring old Henpeck's face to an ashen hue. This bitterly enrages Henpeck, who picks up the hero bodily and tosses him headforemost from the mansion. The scene carries a great amount of comedy that borders on the farcial degree.

TAKEN IN HOME

The second scene taken at the Thornton home finds Mrs. Henpeck away behind in her household duties. Needing assistance she starts on the hunt of her husband and finds him asleep beside the garage. Grabbing a pail of water and spinning it over head she throws it in true movie style, the pail of water striking its mark and landing on Henpeck's head, giving him a complete dousing.

One of the outstanding characters of the play is Jeanne Crowe as "Katrinka, the country flapper." She is the real comedian of the plot and will furnish witnesses of the picture many hearty laughs.

The cast worked long and diligently Friday to complete the interior scenes. Another comic scene was taken at the railroad station, showing Baby Ethel returning from a trip. Mr. Henpeck and Billy Brown meet her at the station with the baby and car-

SHERIFF SALE GAIN IS HIGH

An amazing increase in sale of properties at sheriff's sales is noted in a report of his office's transactions made by Sheriff Charles H. Radcliff to the county commissioners.

Last year, 1931, saw more sales and a larger amount of money exchanged in the transactions than any time in recent years. In that year 16 sales were conducted at a total figure of $111,692.36.

The present year promises more sales when 12 had been held during the first half of the 12-month. The sum totalled only $54,039.39 less than half as much as in 1931.

Figures from 1924 until 1930 follow:

1924, five sales for $37,710.78; 1925, six sales, for $73.698.03; 1926, 13 sales for $85,273.45; 1927, 10 sales, for $56,172.54; 1928, eight sales for $48,546.15; 1929, eight sales, for $44,891.94; 1930, 13 sales for $73,912.58.

Chief Deputy Byron Custer and Deputy Bob Armstrong handle the greater portion of the sales in the office.

FLIGHT IS ENDED

CONES, England, Aug. 6.—The Hon. Mrs. Victor Bruce, famous British airwoman and globe traveller, today was forced down for a second time within a week while attempting to set a new refuelling endurance flight record.

Lifeboats were sent out to bring in Mrs. Bruce and the two men pilots with her after their large, cabin amphibian was brought to rest on the water at 6:00 a. m., less than 16 hours after the start at 2:12 p. m. yesterday.

MRS. GARDNER DIES

Mrs. Laura Alice Gardner, a former resident here, died at Lancaster hospital at 3:25 p. m. Friday following a long illness after she suffered a fractured hip.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 1:30 p. m. at the home of Mrs. E. B. Clarke, a step-daughter, 425 Boyd-st, Lancaster, with interment in Reber Hill cemetery.

Besides a daughter, Mrs. Mary Courtright of near Lancaster, Mrs. Gardner is survived by the following; three stepdaughters, Mrs. E. B. Clarke, Mrs. W. O. Newman and Mrs. Charles Smith, all of Lancaster; three sisters, Miss Mary Doering, Mrs. Clara Eitel and Mrs. Martha Eitel, all of this city; three brothers, William Doering of Amanda, Elmer Doering of Marion and John Doering of this city.

JURY DISAGREES

WASHINGTON, C. H., Aug. 6.—Following a jury disagreement, it appeared probable here today that John Gillum, 55, Spanish war veteran, would be freed of murder charges in connection with the death of William Bogan, a negro.

After being out six hours, the jury was dismissed. County authorities said they did not believe Gillum would be retried. Bogan was slain May 27.

KIDNAPERS OF BANKER CAPTURED

Italians Grilled by Police After John Colegrove Is Taken.

FEAR MAN SLAIN

Bloodstains Found in Car By Officers.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 6.—A manhunt for the kidnapers and possible murderers of John B. Colegrove, 65-year-old banker, culminated here today in the capture of Anelita Tuzzuoli, 32, of Detroit, and James Damaconi, 38, of Devereaux Heights, Ill.

The two men and Anthony Damaconi, brother of James, had been hunted since late last night when Colegrove was dragged out of his home at Taylorville, 26 miles from here, and carried off in an automobile.

FEAR MAN DEAD

Immediately following the arrest of the two men police and sheriff's deputies organized a search for the banker. They feared he might have been slain.

Damaconi and Tuzzuoli were arrested in an automobile which according to authorities, resembled the machine in which Colegrove was spirited away from his Taylorville home. Bloodstains were found on the car, police said.

Colegrove was under a one to three year prison sentence following conviction in connection with the failure of the J. B. Colegrove and Company State Bank of Taylorville, a $1,000,000 institution. He was found guilty of accepting deposits when he knew the bank was insolvent.

A previous trial for embezzlement ended in conviction and reversal on appeal and a second trial on the same charge resulted in his acquittal.

CLAIM REVENGE

The kidnaping, police believed, may have been engineered by disgruntled depositors who may have tortured the elderly banker in an effort to make him reveal the hiding place of money which he was charged during his trial with having hoarded.

Taylorville police who rushed to Colegrove's home after the abduction found evidences of a terrific struggle with furniture upset and bloodstains on the floor. eNighbors noted the license number of the kidnaper's car which started police on their hunt.

Damaconi and Tuzzuoli were subjected to an all-night grilling. Damaconi, police said, was believed to have lost $5,000 in the failure of Colegrove's bank.

"PROHIBITION LOSING HOLD"

MATHEWS SAYS—

Fines Are Greatly Lower State Commissioner Says; Interest Waning.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 6. — A virtual admission that prohibition enforcement was slowly failing had been made here today by none other than State Prohibition Commissioner Edmund Mathews.

Appearing before the joint public hearing being held by Gov. George White's salary reduction committee and the senate economy committee, Director Mathews declared that "the courts and public in general are losing interest in prohibition enforcements."

Asked point-blank by members of the committee if prohibition could be enforced, Mathews replied:

"Only inasmuch as the people are interested in it."

BOY, 4, CALLED

A week's illness of meningitis caused the death of Loring F. DeLong, aged 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard DeLong of 866 Tippin-st, Chillicothe, Friday.

The child was born in this city May 30, 1928 and besides the parents is survived by a brother, Harold, and two sisters, Don Da Lee and Betty Louise.

Funeral services will be Monday at 3 p. m. at the United Brethren church here with Rev. W. F. Rutherford and Rev. Lewis Hampshire officiating.

TOO BUSY TO WRITE BOB GREENLEE SAYS

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is another article by Robert Greenlee, Circleville's representative at the Olmpic games. Bob has been so busy that he has had but little time to write, thus the delay between his last two letters.

Los Angeles, Cal.

"Perhaps you will think I have been neglecting my duty because I have not written for several days, but the truth of it is that I have not had time to write. I have been getting only about five hours sleep a night and once I went without a breakfast because of insufficient time. Now I am sacrificing part of those few hours of sleep to write the letter, so you see I have not forgotten you.

"Saturday afternoon was the opening day of the games. We took electric cars to the stadium and then after fighting the crowd for half an hour finally managed to get seats. Vice President Curtis declared the games open at about 2:30 p. m., in the new Olympic stadium before a crowd of 105,000 while balloons, dirigibles, airplanes and autogiros flew overhead with trailing signs. Then the torch on top of the entrance of the Olympic stadium was ignited. This torch is to burn until the games are finished. The Olympic flag was raised, trumpets were sounded, the 250 piece band played the Olympic song while the 1200 voice chorus sang, and the games were formally opened.

The Church Invites You

SPIRITUAL HEART FAILURE

Professor G. S. Dobbins of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary has said, "What the heart is to the body, worship is to Christian life. When church members cease regular attendance on the services of the church, spiritual heart failure develops both for them and for the church."

"Teaching and study inform the head; preaching and worship inspire the heart. Both are absolutely essential to a full-rounded Christian development. Yet the fact is that many who attend Sunday school do not attend the preaching service."

It is pathetic to see so many leave the church building at the close of the Sunday school session. Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?

The minister has just returned from his vacation spent in the East. Where pessimism was most deeply seated there is now a growing optimism, a more hopeful outlook as to business improvement. However we were most concerned about the churches. We found a confident attitude. In two churches we were surprised by the number of men and young men The Riverside church in New York City where Dr. Fosdick preaches may be exceptional but in its audience of four thousand were students from all over the world. The ushers were younger men. It is a living institution adapting itself to the needs of the men of today.

Dr. Eiselen recently resigned to become Corresponding secretary of the Board of Education of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Twelve denominations have been participating in the effort to increase world brotherhood ideals among the million or more children attending vacation church schools this summer. The International association of daily vacation Bible schools operating as a department of the International Council of Religious Education is cooperating in promoting the following objectives: 1. An adequate program of missionary education available for all vacation church schools 2. Sharing of vacation experiences with underprivileged children of the world and 3 The missionary extension of the daily vacation Bible schools among unchurched children of America and in foreign mission lands.

Near the geographical center of the North American continent Dunseith, N. D. there was recently dedicated a natural monument to peace and goodwill. As citizens of both nations gathered on the international boundary, a marble plaque was revealed in which was inscribed "To God in His Glory, we two nations dedicate this garden and pledge ourselves that as long as men shall live, we will not take up arms against one another."

What is the New Testament Plan of Giving?

The New Testament plan of giving is found in I Corinthians 16:2—"Upon the first day of the week, let each one of you lay by him in store as he may prosper that no collections be taken when I come." This plan is definite as to the time of the offering, participants, the place of offering and the amount of the offering.

What is Implied in the Weekly Offering Plan?

This plan calls for a regular, periodic, systematic giving by all the members of a church; the weekly Sunday services of worship should include as a part of the program of worship the weekly offering; weekly giving ties the individual up with the commandment to keep the Sabbath holy; it serve as the most natural expression of one who considers himself one of God's stewards.

The amount of the weekly church offering should be based on the New Testament principle "according as he may be prospered." The Old Testament specified the title and nowhere in the New Testament is the plan abrogated. In fact Christ recognized it as a well established custom to be commended

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS—DUTIES TO GOD

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 20:1-11.

GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, with all thy soul and with all thy strength.—Deuteronomy 6:5.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Giving of the Ten Commandments.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Giving of the Ten Commandments.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Loving and Worshiping God.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Giving God First Place.

The Ten Commandments furnish us with the greatest moral code the world has ever seen. The law was not given to save sinners, nor to rule saints, but to reveal sin (Rom. 3:19, 20), and to lead to Christ (Gal. 3:24).

I. The Preface to the Decalogue (vv. 1, 2).

The Ten Commandments are based upon the truth set forth in the preface. Two great thoughts underlie this—what the Lord is, and what he did. What he is, is embodied in the name Jehovah-Elohim. The name Jehovah sets forth three great truths.

1. His all-sufficiency. All that he is and does centers in himself.

2. His sovereignty. There is no being equal to him, nor above him.

3. His unchangeableness. The "I am that I am" (Exod. 3:14) may be expanded into "I am what I was," "I will be what I am," "Jesus Christ the same yesterday and today and forever" (Heb. 13:8). The name Elohim signifies the strong and mighty One. What he did is asserted to be their deliverance from Egyptian bondage. God always acts towards us before he expects us to act toward him.

II. The First Commandment (v. 3).

"Thou shalt have no other gods before me" means literally, "Thou shalt have no other gods before my face." This commandment requires single-hearted worship and service. Man was created a worshiping being. From the very deepest recesses of his being he demands a god. Furthermore, every man has his god. It is either the true God or a false god. The center around which our activities revolve is our God. This commandment may be broken—

1. By living for self. If one's activities gather around himself he worships himself, and is therefore an idolater.

2. By making pleasure the goal of our lives, and spending our time and money for our sensual enjoyment.

3. By being covetous (Col. 3:5). Every man who is greedy for gold breaks this commandment.

III. The Second Commandment (vv. 4-6).

The first commandment is directed against false goods. The second is directed against the worship of the true God with false forms. This commandment may be broken—

1. By resorting to the use of crosses and images in our worship.

2. By putting the pope in the place of Christ, and following after priestcraft.

It should be observed that this commandment is accompanied with a warning and a promise. The warning is that iniquity will be visited upon the children even to the third and fourth generation. The most awful thing a man can do is to pass on a wrong conception of God to his children. The promise is that he will show mercy to thousands.

IV. The Third Commandment (v. 7).

The Hebrew word translated "vain" in this prohibition against taking the name of God in vain, means lying, deceptive, unreal. Therefore, to take the name of God in vain means to use it in a lying, deceptive and unreal way. The word "guiltless" is from a Hebrew word, the root-meaning of which is to be clean, to go unpunished. The meaning, therefore, is that God will not hold such a man to be clean and will not allow him to go unpunished who takes the divine name in a lying and hypocritical way. The name of God signifies his character, authority, institutions and commandments. This third commandment may be broken—

1. By profanity. 2. By perjury. 3. By levity and frivolity. 4. By hypocrisy, which is professing to live for God when living for self.

V. The Fourth Commandment (vv. 8-11).

The essential principle embodied in this commandment is work and rest. It enjoins work on six days and forbids work on the seventh. The command to work six days is just as binding as the rest on the seventh. The human being needs physical rest and spiritual refreshment. This commandment may be broken—

1. By living in idleness. 2. By working on the day set apart for the worship of God. 3. By making it a day of feasting. 4. By devoting it to pleasures and games.

The Thoughtfulness of Mr. Gladstone.

"Has anyone been to see you" asked a minister one day of a poor sweeper who was lying ill.

"Yes" was the answer, "Mr. Gladstone."

"Which Mr. Gladstone?"

'Why, just Mr. Gladstone", repeated the sick man.

"But how did he come to visit you?" asked the vicar. He could not understand how the Prime Minister of Britain should call upon a crossing sweeper.

'Well, " said the invalid, "he always had a word for me when he passed my crossing; and when I was not there, he missed me. He asked my mate, who had taken my place where I was and when he heard I was ill, he put my address down on paper and then he called to see me."

"And what did he do?"

"Why he read to me out of the Bible and prayed." was the answer.

CHURCH OF THE BRETHREN
L. D. Young, Pastor

I would have my church be a humble church, one in which the poorest and the down trodden may feel at home. For ours should not be a church too good for even the most lowly to find Jesus as their Savior. I would have my church ever be one whose doors are always open to anyone who will repect God's house and God's people. I would have the members of my church be humble one toward another.

The Church Invites You

SPIRITUAL HEART FAILURE

Professor G. S. Dobbins of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary has said, "What the heart is to the body, worship is to Christian life. When church members cease regular attendance on the services of the church, spiritual heart failure develops both for them and for the church."

"Teaching and study inform the head; preaching and worship inspire the heart. Both are absolutely essential to a full-rounded Christian development. Yet the fact is that many who attend Sunday school do not attend the preaching service."

It is pathetic to see so many leave the church building at the close of the Sunday school session. Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?

The minister has just returned from his vacation spent in the East. Where pessimism was most deeply seated there is now a growing optimism, a more hopeful outlook as to business improvement. However we were most concerned about the churches. We found a confident attitude. In two churches we were surprised by the number of men and young men. The Riverside church in New York City where Dr. Fosdick preaches may be exceptional but in its audience of four thousand were students from all over the world. The ushers were younger men. It is a living institution adapting itself to the needs of the men of today. The men and young men of Circleville owe it to their churches to stand by and make them a vital influence in the community life. Go to church tomorrow. Take a friend.

The International Goodwill Congress of the World Alliance for International Friendship Through the Churches will be held in New York City Nov. 10-12.

The Rev. Horace G. Smith, former pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church of Wilmette, Ill., has been elected to the presidency of Garrett Bibical Institute to succeed Dr. Frederick Carl Eiselen. Dr. Eiselen recently resigned to become Corresponding secretary of the Board of Education of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Twelve denominations have been participating in the effort to increase world brotherhood ideals among the million or more children attending vacation church schools this summer. The International association of daily vacation Bible schools operating as a department of the International Council of Religious Education is cooperating in promoting the following objectives: 1. An adequate program of missionary education available for all vacation church schools. 2. Sharing of vacation experiences with underprivileged children of the world and 3 The missionary extension of the daily vacation Bible schools among unchurched children of America and in foreign mission lands.

The United Church of Canada has undertaken a major share in rendering Christian medical service to the 100,000,000 people of west China. Less than 40 years ago the first doctors reached that area.

Near the geographical center of the North American continent Dunseith, N. D. there was recently dedicated a natural monument to peace and goodwill. As citizens of both nations gathered on the international boundary, a marble plaque was revealed in which was inscribed "To God in His Glory, we two nations dedicate this garden and pledge ourselves that as long as men shall live, we will not take up arms against one another."

What is the New Testament Plan of Giving?

The New Testament plan of giving is found in I Cornthians 16:2—"Upon the first day of the week, let each one of you lay by him in store as he may prosper that no collections be taken when I come." This plan is definite as to the time of the offering, participants, the place of offering and the amount of the offering.

What is Implied in the Weekly Offering Plan?

This plan calls for a regular, periodic, systematic giving by all the members of a church; the weekly Sunday services of worship should include as a part of the program of worship the weekly offering; weekly giving ties the individual up with the commandment to keep the Sabbath holy; it serve as the most natural expression of one who considers himself one of God's stewards.

The amount of the weekly church offering should be based on the New Testament principle "according as he may be prospered." The Old Testament specified the title and nowhere in the New Testament is the plan abrogated. In fact Christ recognized it as a well established custom to be commended.

Lesson for August 7

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS—DUTIES TO GOD

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 20:1-11.

GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, with all thy soul and with all thy strength.—Deuteronomy 6:5.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Giving of the Ten Commandments.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Giving of the Ten Commandments.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Loving and Worshiping God.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Giving God First Place.

The Ten Commandments furnish us with the greatest moral code the world has ever seen. The law was not given to save sinners, nor to rule saints, but to reveal sin (Rom. 3:19, 20), and to lead to Christ (Gal. 3:24).

I. The Preface to the Decalogue (vv. 1, 2).

The Ten Commandments are based upon the truth set forth in the preface. Two great thoughts underlie this—what the Lord is, and what he did. What he is, is embodied in the name Jehovah-Elohim. The name Jehovah sets forth three great truths.

1. His all-sufficiency. All that he is and does centers in himself.

2. His sovereignty. There is no being equal to him, nor above him.

3. His unchangeableness. The "I am that I am" (Exod. 3:14) may be expanded into "I am what I was," "I will be what I am," "Jesus Christ the same yesterday and today and forever" (Heb. 13:8). The name Elohim signifies the strong and mighty One. What he did is asserted to be their deliverance from Egyptian bondage. God always acts towards us before he expects us to act toward him.

II. The First Commandment (v. 3).

"Thou shalt have no other gods before me" means literally, "Thou shalt have no other gods before my face." This commandment requires single-hearted worship and service. Man was created a worshiping being. From the very deepest recesses of his being he demands a god. Furthermore, every man has his god. It is either the true God or a false god. The center around which our activities revolve is our God. This commandment may be broken—

1. By living for self. If one's activities gather around himself he worships himself, and is therefore an idolater.

2. By making pleasure the goal of our lives, and spending our time and money for our sensual enjoyment.

3. By being covetous (Col. 3:5). Every man who is greedy for gold breaks this commandment.

III. The Second Commandment (vv. 4-6).

The first commandment is directed against false goods. The second is directed against the worship of the true God with false forms. This commandment may be broken—

1. By resorting to the use of crosses and images in our worship.

2. By putting the pope in the place of Christ, and following after priestcraft.

It should be observed that this commandment is accompanied with a warning and a promise. The warning is that iniquity will be visited upon the children even to the third and fourth generation. The most awful thing a man can do is to pass on a wrong conception of God to his children. The promise is that he will show mercy to thousands.

IV. The Third Commandment (v. 7).

The Hebrew word translated "vain" in this prohibition against taking the name of God in vain, means lying, deceptive, unreal. Therefore, to take the name of God in vain means to use it in a lying, deceptive and unreal way. The word "guiltless" is from a Hebrew word, the root-meaning of which is to be clean, to go unpunished. The meaning, therefore, is that God will not hold such a man to be clean and will not allow him to go unpunished who takes the divine name in a lying and hypocritical way. The name of God signifies his character, authority, institutions and commandments. This third commandment may be broken—

1. By profanity. 2. By perjury. 3. By levity and frivolity. 4. By hypocrisy, which is professing to live for God when living for self.

V. The Fourth Commandment (vv. 8-11).

The essential principle embodied in this commandment is work and rest. It enjoins work on six days and forbids work on the seventh. The command to work six days is just as binding as the rest on the seventh. The human being needs physical rest and spiritual refreshment. This commandment may be broken—

1. By living in idleness. 2. By working on the day set apart for the worship of God. 3. By making it a day of feasting. 4. By devoting it to pleasures and games.

Easterner Edges Pride Of Coast

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 6.—With the two greatest tests of all-around athletic ability nearing an end, and track and field, the "blue ribbon" sport, in its final stages, the Olympic games today completed its first week of competition and moved triumphantly into the final seven days.

Americans were in the lead today in both the decathlon, the composite track and field championship, and the pentathlon, described as the standard for measuring the finest soldier in the world.

By placing "one-two" in the 400--meter final, the United States continued to pile up its unofficial point total, with 310½, and Italy, with 104½, moved into second place ahead of France with 99. Finland with 72 came up to fourth place.

NEW CHAMPIONS

New-crowned Olympic champions were:

400-Meters: William Carr, United States—:46.2 (new Olympic and new world's record).

5,000-Meters: Lauri Lehtinen, Finland—14:30 (new Olympic record).

Seared on the memory of the crowd of 65,000 in the Olympic stadium Friday were those two races—the 400, which settled the dispute between East and West when Carr, the Pennsylvanian, bested Ben Eastman, the Stanford flash, by six feet; and the 5,000 meters, which brought forth the first serious squabble of the games.

Ralph Hill, the lean Oregon lad, ran a gallant race and there were many in the stands who thought that Lehtinen, by shifting his lane several times in the home stretch, robbed the American of victory. "Boos" were heard for the first time in the stadium, but both Hill and the American officials decided not to protest the final results.

CHARLES IN LEAD

In the decathlon, "Buster" Charles, husky Kansan, led the field with 4,266.20 points against 4,181.14 fon Janis Dimsa of Latvia, a dark horse, and 4,168.76 for Akilles Jahvinen of Finland, world record holder.

With four events of the pentathlon completed, and only the cross country run to be held, Lieut. Richard Mayo of the United States army was first, close pressed by Count Oxenstierna, Lieut. Sven Thofelt, and Lieut. Bo Lindman, all of Sweden.

SCHMELING AND WALKER TO MEET

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Announcement will be made not later than Friday next that Max Schmeling, former heavyweight champion, and Mickey Walker have been matched for Sept. 26 at the Garden bowl as the first of three major engagements in the heavyweight division under the auspices of Madison Square Garden. The second engagement will feature the winner of this fight in a 10 round bout at Miami in February. The third will be for the championship itself next June.

These arrangements are tacitly understood by the principals and their managers, but definite announcement is being withheld until such time as the boxing commission takes the bowser off Joe Jacobs.

GOLFERS GET WEEK MORE TO QUALIFY

The qualifying round for golfers who expect to enter the Pickaway Country club's championship tournament has been extended until next Sunday, Frank Casey, club professional, announced Saturday.

Golfers will have all next week, to enter their score cards.

"I, therefore, urge upon the citizens of this city to use the streets, either as drivers or as pedestrians, with all possible care during the month of August so that in subsequent months the special effort will continue to result in a greater safeguarding of life and limb. I ask that everyone give full cooperation and wholehearted support to the traffic and police officials and other departments which rightfully have to do with the regulation of motor vehicle traffic, to the end that this city may show a record free from automobile accidents during the month. stadium led by Greece (the founder of athletic games) and lined across the field where the Olympic oath was given them. Then marching back to the stadium the afternoon program was finished and they would start the games tomorrow.

"We then took cars to our hotel where dinner was served and we were given an evening for random. Most of us went to a show or else explored the city.

"Sunday morning after an early breakfast we boarded electric cars and were taken to San Gabrial mission for sight seeing and a devotional service. The San Gabriel mission is an old church founded in 1771 by Spanish priests. It his survived the ages and is now one of the most historical sacred places in the United States. Here we spent the morning seeing many interesting sights (including some fair Spanish girls), and after a box luncheon went to the Olympic stadium for the games. Although it is impossible for me to describe the games, I might say that it was quite a thrill to see the world's best athletes. I saw some Ohio boys, Simpson and Kellar. Several world records were broken the first day.

"Well, I will have to close now as my roommate is 'hollering' about the light being on when he needs sleep."

HURLER JUST MISSES FAME

26 Straight Batters Retired By Tom Bridges Then Pinch-Hitter Singles.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Tommy Bridges, Detroit pitcher, just missed a niche in baseball's Hall of Fame today.

With two out in the ninth inning yesterday, not a single Washington player had reached first base. Then Dave Harris, a pinch hitter, stepped to the plate and with the count two and two, hit a single.

Bridges struck out seven batters and collected two of Detroit's 15 hits, Gehringer getting four. The score was 13 to 0.

A lapse of a few moments also prevented Bill Walker, Giants' southpaw, from pitching a no-hitter. He yielded only two hits, both homers hit consecutively by Blades and Wilson in the fifth inning, as the Giants downed the Cardinals 6 to 2 for their fifth straight victory.

Lefty Grove almost won his own game against the Browns by smacking a homer in the tenth inning, but in the second half of the inning he fumbled a grounder, which coupled with doubles by Shulte and Ferrell, gave the Browns two runs and a 9 to 8 victory. Jimmy Foxx cracked out his 42nd homer.

Chuck Klein hit his 32nd homer as the Phils knocked out Charley Root and beat the Cubs, 9 to 2. Red Lucas of Cincinnati subdued the Braves, 3 to 2.

Mel Harder pitched the Cleveland Indians to their third straight win over the Red Sox, 7 to 2.

BIRDS TO TANGLE WITH MINNEAPOLIS

COLUMBUS, Aug. 6.—A "little world series" with the 1932 American Association champs in the making, was to start here today.

The Columbus Red Birds were to open a four game stand with the league leading Minneapolis outfit and the crucial tilts will make or break either of the two teams.

Columbus took 12 innings to beat St. Paul, 4 to 3, yesterday and today pointed for the Millers If they should beat Minneapolis in the series, they would be well on their way to a pennant.

Indianapolis stands in second place between Columbus and Minneapolis and it too may benefit by the present series.

The Millers' standing wasn't helped at all by two losses to Toledo in as many days.

riage. Mrs. Henpeck, on taking a look at the child, was astounded when the baby turned out to be a colored one.

Robert Rooney, playing the part of the rival, a newspaper reporter, who in real life is Howard White and Elizabeth Pontius as Miss Novarre are also pictured at the depot greeting Baby Ethel on her arrival. Another scene was taken on Main-st and other streets here as a chase by Mrs. Henpeck, played by Mrs. Mary G. Morris, and ends up by forcing Mr. Henpeck to do a lot of high jumping.

Several scenes were taken by the director in various business and residential sections of the city yesterday. Members of the cast were busy all day as the director speeded up production.

The picture has been completed in record time due not only to the special efforts by Mr. Newland, but also through the fact that the cast has co-operated in every way and has been unusually alert to grasp all of the situation as they came up and carry the scenes through smoothly and quickly. Mr. Newland has been more than pleased with the budding movie stars of Pickaway-co and says it has been seldom that he has gotten together as good a cast as he secured in this city.

On completion of the filming of the picture, Director Newland will leave today for Cleveland, where the film will be developed and prepared for showing at the Cliftona Theatre Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

MUCH INTEREST SHOWN

Much interest has been shown by the public in the work of Director Newland and the filming of The Herald's comedy. The director's movements have been closely watched since production was started Wednesday and crowds were on hand wherever exterior scenes were taken.

The biggest thrill scene in the picture was taken at Main and Court-sts Thursday when an automobile wreck was staged. A large crowd watched C. G. Chalfin, Mrs. Mary G. Morris, Miss Eleanor Anderson, Miss Jeanne Crowe, Howard White, Robert Rooney and Policemtn W. F. McCrady, principals in the case, doing their work just as unperturbed as if they had been on a Hollywood lot.

The director also took pictures of the various departments of The Herald. "Pickaway-Co's Hero," is a comedy with a newspaper background primary in Ohio. Smaller fines and lighter jail sentences are being imposed on convicted bootleggers, he said.

Director Newland Thursday expressed himself as being pleased with the filming of "Pickaway-Co's Hero" and predicted that the movie would provide plenty of laughs for audiences at the Cliftona Theatre next week.

Mathews pointed out that in 1924 "when everybody was interested inprohibition enforcement," fines totaling $1,441,000. were collected. Last year, fines were far below the $500,000 mark, he stated in comparison.

However, Mathews asserted his department "was making money for the state." The "profit" in the first six months of the year was $56,182, he said.

Stating he was working with only 18 agents whereas his predecessor in office had 46 enforcement men. Mathews objected to a pay slash in his department charging wages were already inadequate He favored the sliding precentage basis if cuts must be made.

Meanwhile, the committees threatened to go back to the wage basis of six months ago in making salary cuts. This appeared probable when Edgar W. Ellis, chief in the state auditor's office, revealed evidence of salaries of some state employes being boosted with the idea that forthcoming salary reduction could be met in that manner.

MONEY STILL OUT

H. G. Defenbacher, deputy inspector of the bureau of inspection of public offices, disclosed that findings totaling $18,600,000 had been made against public officials since 1902 but that only $6,090,000 of that sum had been collected.

He stated that the present economic slump increased temptation to public officials to handle their accounts "carelessly or even dishonestly."

Officials of the state bar association appeared before the committees and pleaded that no legislative cut be made in the salary of judges, but that the judges be allowed to voluntarily reduce their salaries in proportion to the rate perscribed by the legislature.

extradiction; she will voluntarily return to North Carolina and submit to the jurisdiction of the court in the full confidence that she will receive a fair and impartial trial."

In the habeas corpus petition, with the order signed by Judge A. M. Stack, of superior court, at his home, after court hours, the reasons why Walker should be freed under bond were given as follows:

"That the imprisonment of Walker was illegal because the grand jury which found the murder indictment in the first degree had no jurisdiction to find such an indictment as the evidence submitted was insufficient, showing neither reasonable or probably cause that the defendant had committed any felonious homicide; that it was believed that the only evidence submitted to the grand jury was the transcript of testimony given before the coroner's jury, plus the Scott and Stewart Warnken, Reynolds' estate manager."

The arrival of Holman here resulted in an about-face in his attitude toward the surrender of Libby. In Cincinnati he had declared that he would not disclose the whereabouts of his daughter until she had recovered her health.

WILL COOPERATE

But, after the lawyer-father of the missing defendant conferred with Solicitor Carlisle Higgins, who declined to discuss the matter of bail with his visitor, Holman asserted that he wished to cooperate with officials.

He declared that he had no intention to defy the laws of North Carolina and pointed out that if he had he would not have come within the state jurisdiction by coming to Winston-Salem.

"I want to have the trial of my daughter as soon as possible," he said. "I am confident, of course, that she will be completely exonerated of the charges against her.

"The desire for speedy trial and the added natural desire to save my daughter from all needless inconvenience before the trial were the main reasons for my coming here."

Holman declined to discuss whether or not his daughter had filed claim yet to the estate of her young husband.

He said it was a private matter and did not care to comment upon it. Recently Libby asked W. N. Reynolds, uncle of the dead youth, to act as executor of the estate. The uncle did not accept the position.

The 30-day period permitted the widow under state law in which to ask for letters of administration expires today.

If an application is not made a citation will be issued from the office of the clerk of superior court, allowing two additional days.

After this time, any relative or creditor may ask appointment of an administrator, or the clerk may select one himself.

The hide-and-seek game over the whereabouts of Mrs. Reynolds, continued today.

While local counsel engaged by Holman were planning a way to keep Libby out of a prison cell, Sheriff Transou Scott expanded his search for the hideaway of the feminine defendant wanted on murder indictment.

HUNT IN JERSEY

Sheriff Scott received information from Hamilton-co, Ohio, where Libby had been staying at the home of her sister, Mrs. Myron Kahn, that an automobile was seen in front of the Kahn residence on July 24 at 1:30 p. m., the license number 5608 was traced to the ownership of Mrs. Louisa D. A'Jenney, of Montchanin, Delaware, reported to be a close friend of Libby.

The following telegram was sent to Sheriff Irving J. Hollingsworth, of New Castle-co, near Wilmington, Delaware, by Sheriff Scott;

"I hold capias for arrest of Mrs. Libby Holman Reynolds on charge of murder based on grand jury indictment. I have information she is with Mrs. Louisa D. A'Jenney, of Montchanin, Delaware. Please arrest Mrs. Reynolds and wire me. If Mrs. A'Jenney is not in Montchanin wire me her whereabouts if possible."

Kirwin "Hob-Nobs" With Hoot Gibson, Star Actor

Many Interesting Things Besides Olympic Games Are Visited.

By PAT J. KIRWIN

Enroute to Los Angeles aboard The Sunset Limited; Wednesday afternoon, Aug 3 at 3:35 o'clock.

"Hello Everybody:

"We're still living, despite the fact that since early this morning we've been travelling through an arid desert in New Mexico and Arizona. The temperature has gone as high as the 110 mark and absolutely refuses to go lower than 105. I presume that if many of you readers were along, you would authorize me to begin and conclude this article with the advice that the best place to spend a vacation is in good old Circleville town. Maybe you're right, but I guess vacations are one of the necessary evils and we'll always find something worthwhile at the end of the road.

"I certainly have no desire to see the Sahara desert in northern Africa, after viewing a site similar, in my own country for the past eight hours, and which will continue to stare at me in the face until I retire tonight. Ordinarily, darkness would suggest relief, but I was just told that when we reach western Arizona sometime tonight we'll be several hundred feet below sea level and the heat will be turned on properly.

SEES MEXICO

"We arrived in El Paso, Texas, this morning and stopped off about 15 minutes to walk around, get some exercise and attempt to see some of the city. El Paso is on the border of Texas and Mexico and we could stand at the station and look over on the land of Mexico.

"I was keenly interested in a Mexican village, located outside of El Paso. The houses are mud huts and sometimes accomodate 10-head families. It was learned that rain scarcely falls here and that is the big reason why the mud huts remain intact. If one of the heavy rain and hail storms that we experience in Ohio would strike here, it would play havoc with these Mexican villages. Therefore the inhabitants are praying at all times that rain will not fall.

"When we began our journey through the desert this morning, I was almost certain that we were in for a monotinous siege of tiresome riding, less any "breaks" or highlights. However the climax of today's trip, (up to now) came about 11 a. m. when I discovered that the famous wild-west cowboy actor, "Hoot" Gibson had been sitting across from me in the lounge car. I would never have known "Hoot" had not another friend inquired of me if I had not seen him before. I pondered long and then discovered that I was looking at the man whom I had seen on numerous occasions, not on railroad trains, but on the screen at our theatres back home.

HEAT IS SUBJECT

"We introduced ourselves and had a very pleasant chat with Mr. Gibson. He got on the train at El Paso and was returning to Los Angeles to see something of the Olympic games. He was dressed in a sport outfit consisting of a dark coat, light brown pants, dark necktie and brown and white sport shoes. He was accompanied by his secretary, also attired in a light sporting outfit. Both were congenial chaps and were also conversing about the unbearable heat,—however they were bearing it.

"As we ride through this arid country, the blistering heat waves blowing in from all sides and sagebrush, cactus and other desert plants the only vegetation in behold, our sympathy goes out to the laborers who undoubtedly had to undergo a great amount of suffering that we are experiencing to lay the tracks on which this train is now running. Also we bereave for the work-men, who had the job of putting telegraph lines through this section of the country.

"We arrive in Tucson, Arizona, about 6 p. m. today, and from that point I expect to mail this letter.

"And until then, so long."

BEHIND the SCENE In HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., — Hollywood has rolled up its sleeves and is dishing out political stories as fast as writers can pound them out and cameras can photograph them.

Latest studio to get into line is Universal, which starts work today on "Merry-Go-Round," another red-hot potion from our seething political cauldron.

For several weeks, this picture has been waiting on the casting office. After several deals were jammed through at the last minute, Carl Laemmle, Jr., announced the following players would be used: Burton Churchill and Carol Naish.

The screen play of "Merry - Go-Round" was done by Tom Reed, and Edward C. Kahn will direct Chances are there will be a change of title before the film is released.

One of the better wisecracks of the week was pulled by Bob Burns, the comedian, when he was called to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to take a test for "Rasputin."

Sent to the wardrobe department for a costume, he asked for a large selection.

"I hate to be finicky," he told the fitter. "But I'll never be able to get those three Barrymores together again, and I want to go in there and steal that picture."

BOULEVARD TALK—

Those in the know are chuckling over the lyrics of Dorothy Lee's song in a local musical comedy. She warbles of three boy friends and names Marsh, Jim and Fred. Which easily figures out Marshall Duffield Jim Fidler and Fred Waring. You notice, too, that Marsh gets top billing. Incidentally, Dorothy swears she will never "stooge" for comedians again. Hereafter, somebody else will ask the questions and she will supply the answers.

The July issue of Equity Magazine contains a prayer written by an actor-member Beneath is added: "All rights reserved." . . Unless they picked one after this was written, the Constance Bennett picture goes into production today without a leading man . . Al Scott returned here last night. Business kept him away from Hollywood and Colleen Moore for a month . . Down at Laguna Beach, they've per-suaded Bob Armstrong to take part in their big open-air fiesta. Other film people who have taken houses at this beauty spot are Frederick March, E. H. Griffith, Arthur Caesar, Charles Rogers, Chuck Reisner, Polly Moran, and Mal St. Clair. . . Newest fad at Hollywood parties is to make records of the guests' voices. Jerry Horwin carried a microphone around all evening when he entertained for Rian James. Some of the playbacks sounded that strange. A whole train-load of stars are going to participate in the pageant put on by the Shrine Convention in San Francisco. Wallie Berry, Geo. Bancroft, Harold Lloyd, Eddie Robinson, Joe E. Brown, Bebe Danieis. Ben Lyon, Lupe Velez, Tom Mix, Buster Keaton are only a few on the list. Sid Grauman will act as chaperon.

Easterner Edges Pride Of Coast

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 6.—With the two greatest tests of all-around athletic ability nearing an end, and track and field, the "blue ribbon" sport, in its final stages, the Olympic games today completed its first week of competition and moved triumphantly into the final seven days.

Americans were in the lead today in both the decathlon, the composite track and field championship, and the pentathlon, described as the standard for measuring the finest soldier in the world.

By placing "one-two" in the 400--meter final, the United States continued to pile up its unofficial point total, with 310½, and Italy, with 104½, moved into second place ahead of France with 99. Finland with 72 came up to fourth place.

NEW CHAMPIONS

New-crowned Olympic champions were:

400-Meters: William Carr, United States—:46.2 (new Olympic and new world's record).

5,000-Meters: Lauri Lehtinen, Finland—14:30 (new Olympic record).

Seared on the memory of the crowd of 65,000 in the Olympic stadium Friday were those two races—the 400, which settled the dispute between East and West when Carr, the Pennsylvanian, bested Ben Eastman, the Stanford flash, by six feet; and the 5,000 meters, which brought forth the first serious squabble of the games.

Ralph Hill, the lean Oregon lad, ran a gallant race and there were many in the stands who thought that Lehtinen, by shifting his lane several times in the home stretch, robbed the American of victory. "Boos" were heard for the first time in the stadium, but both Hill and the American officials decided not to protest the final results.

CHARLES IN LEAD

In the decathlon, "Buster" Charles, husky Kansan, led the field with 4,266.20 points against 4,181.14 fon Janis Dimsa of Latvia, a dark horse, and 4,168.76 for Akilles Jahvinen of Finland, world record holder.

With four events of the pentathlon completed, and only the cross country run to be held, Lieut. Richard Mayo of the United States army was first, close pressed by Count Oxenstierna, Lieut. Sven Thofelt, and Lieut. Bo Lindman, all of Sweden.

SCHMELING AND WALKER TO MEET

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Announcement will be made not later than Friday next that Max Schmeling, former heavyweight champion, and Mickey Walker have been matched for Sept. 26 at the Garden bowl as the first of three major engagements in the heavyweight division under the auspices of Madison Square Garden. The second engagement will feature the winner of this item in a 10 round bout at Miami in February. The third will be for the championship itself next June.

These arrangements are tacitly understood by the principals and their managers, but definite announcement is being withheld until such time as the boxing commission takes the bowser off Joe Jacobs.

GOLFERS GET WEEK MORE TO QUALIFY

The qualifying round for golfers who expect to enter the Pickaway Country club's championship tournament has been extended until next Sunday, Frank Casey, club professional, announced Saturday.

Golfers will have all next week, to enter their score cards.

thought of many of our governmental agencies as well as the serious consideration of many private individuals in the community,

"I, therefore, urge upon the citizens of this city to use the streets, either as drivers or as pedestrians, with all possible care during the month of August so that in subsequent months the special effort will continue to result in a greater safeguarding of life and limb. I ask that everyone give full cooperation and wholehearted support to the traffic and police officials and other departments which rightfully have to do with the regulation of motor vehicle traffic, to the end that this city may show a record free from automobile accidents during the month. I earnestly call upon persons in every activity of life to participate in this worthwhile program."

stadium led by Greece (the founder of athletic games) and lined across the field where the Olympic oath was given them. Then marching back to the stadium the afternoon program was finished and they would start the games tomorrow.

"We then took cars to our hotel where dinner was served and we were given an evening for random. Most of us went to a show or else explored the city.

"Sunday morning after an early breakfast we boarded electric cars and were taken to San Gabrial mission for sight seeing and a devotional service. The San Gabriel mission is an old church founded in 1771 by Spanish priests. It his survived the ages and is now one of the most historical sacred places in the United States. Here we spent the morning seeing many interesting sights (including some fair Spanish girls), and after a box luncheon went to the Olympic stadium for the games. Although it is impossible for me to describe the games, I might say that it was quite a thrill to see the world's best athletes. I saw some Ohio boys, Simpson and Kellar. Several world records were broken the first day.

primary in Ohio. Smaller fines and lighter jail sentences are being imposed on convicted bootleggers, he said.

Mathews pointed out that in 1924 "when everybody was interested inprohibition enforcement," fines totaling $1,441,000. were collected. Last year, fines were far below the $500,000 mark, he stated in comparison.

However, Mathews asserted his department "was making money for the state." The "profit" in the first six months of the year was $56,182, he said.

Stating he was working with only 18 agents whereas his predecessor in office had 46 enforcement men. Mathews objected to a pay slash in his department charging wages were already inadequate He favored the sliding precentage basis if cuts must be made.

Meanwhile, the committees threatened to go back to the wage basis of six months ago in making salary cuts. This appeared probable when Edgar W. Ellis, chief in the state auditor's office, revealed evidence of salaries of some state employes being boosted with the idea that forthcoming salary reduction could be met in that manner.

MONEY STILL OUT

H. G. Defenbacher, deputy inspector of the bureau of inspection of public offices, disclosed that findings totaling $18,600,000 had been made against public officials since 1902 but that only $6,000,000 of that sum had been collected.

He stated that the present economic slump increased temptation to public officials to handle their accounts "carelessly or even dishonestly."

Officials of the state bar association appeared before the committees and pleaded that no legislative cut be made in the salary of judges, but that the judges be allowed to voluntarily reduce their salaries in proportion to the rate perscribed by the legislature.

ST. HELIER, Jersey, Channel Isles, Aug. 6.—Three hundred and fourteen excursion passengers were safely rescued from the 2,000-ton channel steamer St. Patrick today after the ship went aground on the rocks off Corbiere lighthouse near here.

The craft, bound for Weymouth, England, for St. Helier, grounded in a thick fog at 6:00 p. m. yesterday and later sent out S. O. S. signals which were answered by two steamers and a tug.

The steamer Isle of Sark took off 249 passengers and mails and the tug Duke of Normandy rescued the remaining 65. The steamer St. Julien stood by to attempt to tow in the St. Patrick, which had a badly damaged stokehole.

riage. Mrs. Henpeck, on taking a look at the child, was astounded when the baby turned out to be a colored one.

Robert Rooney, playing the part of the rival, a newspaper reporter, who in real life is Howard White and Elizabeth Pontius as Miss Novarre are also pictured at the depot greeting Baby Ethel on her arrival. Another scene was taken on Main-st and other streets here as a chase by Mrs. Henpeck, played by Mrs. Mary G. Morris, and ends up by forcing Mr. Henpeck to do a lot of high jumping.

Several scenes were taken by the director in various business and residential sections of the city yesterday. Members of the cast were busy all day as the director speeded up production.

The picture has been completed in record time due not only to the special efforts by Mr. Newland, but also through the fact that the cast has co-operated in every way and has been unusually alert to grasp all of the situation as they came up and carry the scenes through smoothly and quickly. Mr. Newland has been more than pleased with the budding movie stars of Pickaway-co and says it has been seldom that he has gotten together as good a cast as he secured in this city.

On completion of the filming of the picture, Director Newland will leave today for Cleveland, where the film will be developed and prepared for showing at the Cliftona Theatre Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

MUCH INTEREST SHOWN

Much interest has been shown by the public in the work of Director Newland and the filming of The Herald's comedy. The director's movements have been closely watched since production was started Wednesday and crowds were on hand wherever exterior scenes were taken.

The biggest thrill scene in the picture was taken at Main and Court-sts Thursday when an automobile wreck was staged. A large crowd watched C. G. Chalfin, Mrs. Mary G. Morris, Miss Eleanor Anderson, Miss Jeanne Crowe, Howard White, Robert Rooney and Policemtn W. F. McCrady, principals in the case, doing their work just as unperturbed as if they had been on a Hollywood lot.

The director also took pictures of the various departments of The Herald. "Pickaway-Co's Hero," is a comedy with a newspaper background.

Director Newland Thursday expressed himself as being pleased with the filming of "Pickaway-Co's Hero" and predicted that the movie would provide plenty of laughs for audiences at the Cliftona Theatre next week.

Late News Flashes

CINCINNATI, Aug. 6.— Detective Joseph B. Schaefer, special Hamilton-co investigator, believes the missing Libby Holman Reynolds is hiding at Springfield at the home of a business man who is a friend of her father.

BERLIN, Aug. 6. — A new series of political outbreaks in various section of the Reich resulting in serious injuries to a score of persons including two children today prompted all sections of the German press to demand stringent measures of repression.

ZANESVILLE, Aug. 6.— While the defending two sons against robbery suspicions John Rogers, 36, an unemployed minor, was shot and fatally wounded today at Byesville O. near here, by James Cramer, 65, a merchant policeman, according to authorities who announced that Cramer will be held for murder.

WALKER CALLED

NEW YORK, Aug. 6. — Mayor Jamse J. Walker today was called upon by Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt to appear in the executive chamber in Albany next Thursday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock to answer the removal charges against him.

WOMAN MURDERS IRATE HUSBAND

GRANITE, Ill., Aug. 6. —The story of how a young wife raced her husband to a hidden revolver and how, shooting the husband to death in defense of the lives of her two young children and herself was told police today.

James Taylor, 38, was dead when an ambulance carried his body, riddled by four bullets, from his home to a local hospital. Mrs. Victoria Taylor, 32, the wife, told police she shot her husband following a quarrel of several days and after he had threatened to kill her and the two children and throw their bodies in the lake.

MOTION ON FILE IN DURBIN CASE

BUCYRUS, Aug. 6. — W. W. Durbin of Kenton, Ohio Democratic leader convicted Wednesday of circulating unsigned election material, filed a motion for a new trial today, charging the guilty verdict resulted from "passion and prejudice."

The motion was filed in common pleas court here.. No date for hearing was set by Judge David Thomas. Durbin faces a $100 to $1000 fine unless the guilty verdict is overruled.

extradiction; she will voluntarily return to North Carolina and submit to the jurisdiction of the court in the full confidence that she will receive a fair and impartial trial."

In the habeas corpus petition, with the order signed by Judge A. M. Stack, of superior court, at his home, after court hours, the reasons why Walker should be freed under bond were given as follows:

"That the imprisonment of Walker was illegal because the grand jury which found the murder indictment in the first degree had no jurisdiction to find such an indictment as the evidence submitted was insufficient, showing neither reasonable or probably cause that the defendant had committed any felonious homicide; that it was believed that the only evidence submitted to the grand jury was the transcript of testimony given before the coroner's jury, plus the Scott and Stewart Warnken, Reynolds' estate manager."

The arrival of Holman here resulted in an about-face in his attitude toward the surrender of Libby. In Cincinnati he had declared that he would not disclose the whereabouts of his daughter until she had recovered her health.

WILL COOPERATE

But, after the lawyer-father of the missing defendant conferred with Solicitor Carlisle Higgins, who declined to discuss the matter of bail with his visitor, Holman asserted that he wished to cooperate with officials.

He declared that he had no intention to defy the laws of North Carolina and pointed out that if he had he would not have come within the state jurisdiction by coming to Winston-Salem.

"I want to have the trial of my daughter as soon as possible," he said. "I am confident, of course, that she will be completely exonerated of the charges against her.

"The desire for speedy trial and the added natural desire to save my daughter from all needless inconvenience before the trial were the main reasons for my coming here."

Holman declined to discuss whether or not his daughter had filed claim yet to the estate of her young husband.

He said it was a private matter and did not care to comment upon it. Recently Libby asked W. N. Reynolds, uncle of the dead youth, to act as executor of the estate. The uncle did not accept the position.

The 30-day period permitted the widow under state law in which to ask for letters of administration expires today.

If an application is not made a citation will be issued from the office of the clerk of superior court, allowing two additional days.

After this time, any relative or creditor may ask appointment of an administrator, or the clerk may select one himself.

The hide-and-seek game over the whereabouts of Mrs. Reynolds, continued today.

While local counsel engaged by Holman were planning a way to keep Libby out of a prison cell, Sheriff Transou Scott expanded his search for the hideaway of the feminine defendant wanted on murder indictment.

HUNT IN JERSEY

Sheriff Scott received information from Hamilton-co, Ohio, where Libby had been staying at the home of her sister, Mrs. Myron Kahn, that an automobile was seen in front of the Kahn residence on July 24 at 1:30 p. m., the license number 5608 was traced to the ownership of Mrs. Louisa D. A'Jenney. of Montchanin, Delaware, reported to be a close friend of Libby.

The following telegram was sent to Sheriff Irving J. Hollingsworth, of New Castle-co, near Wilmington, Delawgre, by Sheriff Scott;

"I hold capias for arrest of Mrs. Libby Holman Reynolds on charge of murder based on grand jury indictment. I have information she is with Mrs. Louisa D. A'Jenney, of Montchanin, Delawgre. Please arrest Mrs. Reynolds and wire me. If Mrs. A'Jenney is not in Montchanin wire me her whereabouts if possible."

Kirwin "Hob-Nobs" With Hoot Gibson, Star Actor

Many Interesting Things Besides Olympic Games Are Visited.

By PAT J. KIRWIN

Enroute to Los Angeles aboard The Sunset Limited; Wednesday afternoon, Aug 3 at 3:35 o'clock.

"Hello Everybody:

"We're still living, despite the fact that since early this morning we've been travelling through an arid desert in New Mexico and Arizona. The temperature has gone as high as the 110 mark and absolutely refuses to go lower than 105. I presume that if many of you readers were along, you would authorize me to begin and conclude this article with the advice that the best place to spend a vacation is in good old Circleville town. Maybe you're right, but I guess vacations are one of the necessary evils and we'll always find something worthwhile at the end of the road.

"I certainly have no desire to see the Sahara desert in northern Africa, after viewing a site similar, in my own country for the past eight hours, and which will continue to stare at me in the face until I retire tonight. Ordinarily, darkness would suggest relief, but I was just told that when we reach western Arizona sometime tonight we'll be several hundred feet below sea level and the heat will be turned on properly.

SEES MEXICO

"We arrived in El Paso, Texas, this morning and stopped off about 15 minutes to walk around, get some exercise and attempt to see some of the city. El Paso is on the border of Texas and Mexico and we could stand at the station and look over on the land of Mexico.

"I was keenly interested in a Mexican village, located outside of El Paso. The houses are mud huts and sometimes accomodate 10-head families. It was learned that rain scarcely falls here and that is the big reason why the mud huts remain intact. If one of the heavy rain and hail storms that we experience in Ohio would strike here, it would play havoc with these Mexican villages. Therefore the inhabitants are praying at all times that rain will not fall.

"When we began our journey through the desert this morning, I was almost certain that we were in for a monotinous siege of tiresome riding, less any "breaks" or highlights. However the climax of today's trip, (up to now) came about 11 a. m. when I discovered that the famous wild-west cowboy actor, "Hoot" Gibson had been sitting across from me in the lounge car. I would never have known "Hoot" had not another friend inquired of me if I had not seen him before. I pondered long and then discovered that I was looking at the man whom I had seen on numerous occasions, not on railroad trains, but on the screen at our theatres back home.

HEAT IS SUBJECT

"We introduced ourselves and had a very pleasant chat with Mr. Gibson. He got on the train at El Paso and was returning to Los Angeles to see something of the Olympic games. He was dressed in a sport outfit consisting of a dark coat, light brown pants, dark necktie and brown and white sport shoes. He was accompanied by his secretary, also attired in a light sporting outfit. Both were congenial chaps and were also conversing about the unbearable heat,—however they were bearing it.

"As we ride through this arid country, the blistering heat waves blowing in from all sides and sagebrush, cactus and other desert plants the only vegetation to behold, our sympathy most willingly goes out to the laborers who undoubtedly had to undergo a double amount of suffering that we are experiencing to lay the tracks on which this train is now running. Also we bereave for the work-men who had the job of putting telegraph lines through this section of the country.

"We arrive in Tucson, Arizona, about 6 p. m. today, and from that point I expect to mail this letter.

"And until then, so long."

BEHIND the SCENE In HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., — Hollywood has rolled up its sleeves and is dishing out political stories as fast as writers can pound them out and cameras can photograph them.

Latest studio to get into line is Universal, which starts work today on "Merry-Go-Round," another red-hot potion from our seething political cauldron.

For several weeks, this picture has been waiting on the casting office. After several deals were jammed through at the last minute, Carl Laemmle, Jr., announced the following players would be used: Burton Churchill and Carol Naish.

The screen play of "Merry - Go-Round" was done by Tom Reed, and Edward C. Kahn will direct Chances are there will be a change of title before the film is released.

One of the better wisecracks of the week was pulled by Bob Burns, the comedian, when he was called to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to take a test for "Rasputin."

Sent to the wardrobe department for a costume, he asked for a large selection.

"I hate to be finicky," he told the fitter. "But I'll never be able to get those three Barrymores together again, and I want to go in there and steal that picture."

BOULEVARD TALK—

Those in the know are chuckling over the lyrics of Dorothy Lee's song in a local musical comedy. She warbles of three boy friends and names Marsh, Jim and Fred. Which easily figures out Marshall Duffield Jim Fidler and Fred Waring. You notice, too, that Marsh gets top billing. Incidentally, Dorothy swears she will never "stooge" for comedians again. Hereafter, somebody else will ask the questions and she will supply the answers.

The July issue of Equity Magazine contains a prayer written by an actor-member Beneath is added: "All rights reserved." . . Unless they picked one after this was written, the Constance Bennett picture goes into production today without a leading man . . Al Scott returned here last night. Business kept him away from Hollywood and Colleen Moore for a month . . Down at Laguna Beach, they've per-suaded Bob Armstrong to take part in their big open-air fiesta. Other film people who have taken houses at this beauty spot are Frederick March, E. H. Griffith, Arthur Caesar, Charles Kenyon, Chuck Reisner, Polly Moran and Mal St. Clair. . .Newest fad at Hollywood parties is to make records of the guests' voices. Jerry Horwin carried a microphone around all evening when he entertained for Rian James. Some of the playbacks sounded that strange. A whole train-load of stars are going to participate in the pageant put on by the Shrine Convention in San Francisco. Wallie Berry, Geo. Bancroft, Harold Lloyd, Eddie Robinson, Joe E. Brown, Bebe Daniels, Ben Lyon, Lupe Velez, Tom Mix, Buster Keaton are only a few on the list. Sid Grauman will act as chaperon.

Horace Wright, editor of the Anniston (Ala.) Star, says:

"Every person believes in advertising, although some will say they do not.

"A merchant may decline to advertise his business, maintaining that it would not pay, but let him be placed in charge of the arrangements for some function and he immediately goes to the newspaper for help in getting it before the public. He believes in advertising, but will not admit it. Therefore, we say that everybody believes in advertising, unconsciously, perhaps, in some cases, but firmly nevertheless.

"If a person tells you he does not believe in advertising, ask him to take stock in himself. Doubtless he does not know his own mind in this matter or is not honest enough to speak his convictions.

"Ask him why everybody, men and women, young and old, is smoking cigarets today, whereas a generation ago the person addicted to that habit was pointed out to the young boy as a horrible example of depraved tastes and degeneration. The answer is advertising.

"What is it that fills the motion picture theatre- It is the advertising given the picture in advance of the show. The people do not seek the show today, with radio, automobiles and other diversions for competition. The show must seek the people.

"Why do nine out of ten men who shave themselves today use a safety razor while our fathers and grandfathers stuck to the trusty straight-edge for the weekly grooming process and would have scoffed at the suggestion that they use one of those 'new-fangled dojiggers'?

"One may say that one does not believe in advertising, but the facts are there, indisputably plain. And the actions of the would-be doubter always belie his words."

Levity A Balance Wheel

IT is not recorded who first said "a little nonsense now and then is relished by the best of men." But whoever it was, he might with equal accuracy have observed that a great deal of nonsense is relished at any time by most men.

In business or pleasure, a laugh is as hungrily sought as anything else that may be on the program. The business of living is involved in so many hardships and worries that the most trivial nonsense helps to make life brighter and better.

Wit and humor lift the heart and serve as a tonic for many ills; and that is the reason the public has hung the words of such great humorists as Artemus Ward, Bill Nye and Mark Twain and forgotten those of serious-minded philosphers and statesmen.

People love to lose themselves in laughter and frivolity. Their souls cry out for laughter. It is their antidote for sorrows and troubles. If it is true that "only fools laugh for wise men see nothing laughable in life," then few wise men have been born since Schopenhauer wrote his "Studies in Pessimism."

It has been said that a sense of humor is a saving grace; but no two people seem to have the same sense of humor. Perhaps the best is that which enables one to see enough of the funny side of the experiences of life, tragic as some of them are, to laugh his way through difficulities and to preceive the laughable side of the thing when fate drives him through the briar patches.

A Huge Investment

WHY does the state provide free public education?

The state supports free schools to perpetuate itself and to promote its own interests. Education is a long-term investment that the country may be a better place in which to live and a better place in which to make a living.

Of the four means the state has in the past employed for its own perpetuation—war, the police force, social pressure and education—education is the sole means it has for presenting such knowledge and inculcating such attitudes as are necessary for maintaining the approved standards of living and raising them toward higher ideals.

The state, having made an investment of such magnitude, must in order to protect it and insure dividends on it see to it that the educative program keeps that end in view.

The state is doing what it can for the betterment of the individual, but in doing so it is looking to the betterment of society and its own salvation. It is that informing purpose which alone justifies its vast free system.

For good cause, then, do the people, who are the state, jealously guard the public schools, spend lavishly upon them and often, in their zeal, handicap them with ill-conceived laws and taboos.

Speed Is Relative

IDEAS of speed change with the means. A century ago an Ohio politician was hooted off the stump because he stated as a fact that in England the new steam carriages could travel 20 miles an hour. His oppenents ridiculed him and insisted that the human frame could not withstand such speed.

Writers of fiction 20 years ago described young daredevils traveling at the breath-taking and reckless speed of 15 miles in powerful racing automobiles.

Today persons never in the air think of a hundred miles an hour by airplane as somewhat slow. Sixty miles an hour recently a race track speed, is now within the powers of the cheapest and smallest automobile and is the cruising speed of many motorists.

This history of speed does not, however, carry the argument of some that a speed of as much as 100 miles an hour on main highways is entirely safe. The best of roads and motors are not enough to neutralize the increased danger due to human fallibility and inexperience. Perhaps the 1932 cars can travel at 70 or 80 with greater safety than 1912 moleds making 30 on the roads of that period, but the dangers are still there.

Railroad trains, can travel faster than they do running on schedule time. They do not use their maximum speed because they have found a limit commensurate with safety. The average motorist determines his maximum speed by the same rule.

"EMBERS OF LOVE"

By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER FORTY

"A boy!" Nita Nahlman cried, bending over the bed in which Lily Lou and the little swaddled red thing lay. "And what have you named it?"

Lily Lou shook her head. She couldn't talk. She didn't want to ever try to talk again. Not even to tell Madame Nahlman to please not shake the bed. Every time anyone touched the bed a pain shot up from her temples and out through the top of her head. But it was easier to bear it than to try to talk.

The nursing sister made clucking noises as she rocked the babe she had taken from Lily Lou's unresisting arms.

"He is a sweet, adorable, darling thing!" the fur-coated prima donna crooned, leaning over the sister to get a better look.

Lily Lou shut her eyes. She was so tired.

When she opened them again Madame Nahlman was gone. The sweet faced night sister sat dozing by the window, her head sunk on her breast.

Lily Lou looked furtively for the baby. She hoped it wasn't in the room. When she saw it she wanted to cry, she couldn't remember why. So she closed her eyes again. It was better to sleep. Sleep, and forget.

They were always waking her. Always wanting to move her and straighten the sheets and plump the fat feather pillows. And they couldn't do a thing without talking. Talk! Talk! Talk! To her—though she couldn't understand a word—to each other—to the doctor—

There were two day sisters who came in and out, white-coiffed and aproned. One was rosy and wore glasses. And one was pale and did not wear glasses. The rosy one brought the baby to her, Lily Lou let it lie there in the crook of her arm, and kept her eyes shut. This, it seemed, was not pleasing to the rosy sister. She made clucking noises with her tongue, and talked at great length in German. Evidently all about the baby's charm.

The pale sister brought trays of food, and made clucking noises with her tongue also. Sometimes she became quite cross because Lily Lou wouldn't eat, and the word "Professor" was used to the accompaniment of a wagging forefinger. Professor seemed to be another name for Herr Doctor. Rather than risk the Professor's displeasure and further argument she always opened her mouth and swallowed what was offered. Then the sister would smile and nobody would bother her for a little while.

It was so good to be let alone. They let her alone so seldom. Always the fussing of the sisters. Their guttural whispers.

Pain that gnawed so that she tossed and twisted in a frenzy of feverish discomfort. Then the sharp thrust of a needle in her arm. Then sleep. Sleep that never lasted long enough. Sleep that began to elude her long before she wanted to wake. Sleep that cast out pain. Sleep that was forgetfulness. . . .

Into her forgetfulness the doctor forced himself, at intervals that had no time. Sometimes he was a dark silhouette against the sunshine of the window, and she knew it was day. Sometimes he was a shadow in the light of the lamp, and she knew that it was night.

"Don't you know me? Don't you remember what has happened?"

The doctor spoke English. Lily Lou wished that he did not. She always answered his questions as quickly as she could, so that he would go away again, and she could slip back to forgetfulness.

"Don't you know that you have a fine baby boy?"

Didn't she know? How could she forget? They wouldn't let her forget . . . that night in the apartment . . . one of the servants bringing him. Herr Doctor Sanders, from across the street.

Being put on a stretcher . . . strange faces . . . Krankenhaus . . . that meant hospital. . . . Agony that transcended time. . . . Sisters with blue dresses and thick white aprons like butchers wear. . . . Her own voice begging, begging for something. . . .

Broken, wracked, all her pride gone, crying out like a little animal that is terribly hurt. The spectacled face of Herr Doctor Sanders, the pupils of his eyes immense behind thick lenses. . . .

And then the thing over her face, and the sharp, sudden fear of the dark into which she was rushing . . . rushing . . . hurtling into bits. Oblivion . . . blessed oblivion. . . . But they wouldn't let her have it, they kept calling her back, the sisters with their trays and their medicines, the spectacled Herr Doctor Sanders.

Madame Nahlman, too. Lily Lou saw her, beaming from the foot of the bed, sometimes. Saw her bringing flowers that smelled too sweet, dainties she couldn't possibly eat, letters that she didn't want to read.

Sometimes she picked up the letters, and set them down again listlessly. What could anyone have to say that would matter to her now? She fingered two thick envelopes from Woodlake, addressed in her mother's pedagogic hand. . . . What did her mother have to do with her now? Her mother was writing to a girl who was studying to be an opera star, not to this sick woman she had turned into. . . .

She put the letters down unopened. Tears welled under her tightly closed lids, rolled down her cheeks.

"Tcch! Tcch!" The rosy day nurse was right at her side with a big white handkerchief. They wouldn't even let her cry. Lily Lou bit her lip, lay silent, pretending to sleep.

Bustling. Creaking of the rosy sister's starched skirts. More clucking noises. Bubchen! The rosy sister was bringing the baby, to comfort her . . . to comfort her! How funny! How terribly, ghastly funny!

Lily Lou turned her face toward the wall. The little head was dark and silky, but there was something about it, about the ears.

"Take it away, please," she begged. "Please take it away, Schwester!"

The sister bustled forward, and right at her heels came Susanne Coin who had probably been in the room right along. Nobody ever asked if they might come in, nobody cared whether she wanted to see them or not, they just came.

"Hello," she said, making the effort because it was Susanne's first visit, trying not to mind when Susanne kissed her on both cheeks.

"The sweet baby. Do let me hold him, Schwester. Oh, the darling! How lucky you are!"

Lily Lou cast a suspicious glance from under her lashes . . . Lucky? She?

"How happy you will be now!" Susanne said earnestly, her pleasant pink face alight with interest. "Think of it, a son! I myself have desired a son. I want to be a mother, I adore motherhood."

Lily Lou shut her eyes. The old trick of pretending to sleep.

"Madame Nahlman sent the flowers. Do you like them? Now tell me what you have named the baby?"

"I haven't named it yet."

"It! You're the first mother I ever heard call her child it! Really, Miss Lansing—"

"Robin, I think. Yes, I'll call it—him—Robin."

"Well! That's better! After his—"

"After no one. I always liked the name, that's all. Robin — Robin Lansing—"

That settled she dropped her eyes again. Lay there motionless, her black hair a somber frame for her pallid face, dark lashes mercifully veiling tell-tale eyes.

Susanne Coin stood with the infant in her arms, rocking him gently.

"Would you like to have him adopted? By a good rich Swiss family? They could give him a good home. Perhaps better than you, who will soon be singing again—"

She broke off, as the sister, with a little cry, elbowed past her to the bed.

Lily Lou was not faking oblivion this time. Her jaw had dropped. She was staring straight at Susanne Coin with eyes that were already glazed and sightless.

* * * *

"I could give him away," she told the rosy sister who was trying to coax her to drink something out of a glass tube, "if it weren't for his ears. His ears are like Ken's. I saw that the first thing. That's why I didn't want to look at him. That was why. You didn't understand, did you?"

She beat her thin, veined hands together with a hopeless gesture. They didn't speak English here. That was the trouble. She used to know some German, but she couldn't remember any today. She tried again, speaking very slowly and distinctly:

"I could give him away to Susanne Coin if he weren't like Ken that way. I don't want to look at him, but I can't help it. I've got to keep him. I can't give him away to that nice Swiss family. I've given away too much. I let them take Ken away from me, and it was wrong. I shouldn't have let them. I should have kept Ken, and my wedding ring. I left it on the table in the hall. It was made of diamonds, but on the inside it said 'Ken to Lily Lou, forever and ever.' Do you understand? Forever and ever, but I let his father tell me . . ."

"Shh! Schlafen sie—"

Sleep! When she wanted to they wouldn't let her, and now . . .

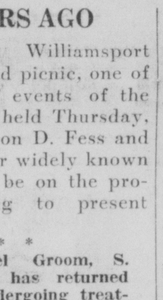
Skin Disorders Common in Summer Very Often Due to Carelessness

Ringworm, Resulting From Infection at Bathing Beaches, and Hives, Caused by Improper Diet, Are Both Much Easier to Prevent Than They Are to Cure.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

THAT a clean, clear and healthy skin is a valuable asset no one will question.

During the summer months skin disorders are more common than at any other time of the year. The sweat glands are more active in hot weather and the skin is more liable to infection. Today I want to tell you about a few of the summer skin diseases and how to prevent them.



Dr. Copeland

Within the last few years sun baths have become extremely popular. Taken properly sun baths are beneficial, but too much exposure to the sun is harmful, for serious results may follow severe burning. Infection of the skin is a frequent complication of neglected sunburn, for the protective covering of the skin is destroyed by excessive exposure to the sun, and this permits the entrance of germs and parasites.

Some persons burn more quickly than others. Blondes and red-headed persons are more sensitive to the sun than brunettes. When the skin is moist, it burns easily.

If you desire a healthy tan, acquire it slowly, deriving the beneficial action of the sun without harm to the sensitive skin layers.

Ringworm is a common infection of the skin that is particularly prevalent during the summer months. It is a highly infectious disease, easily transmitted from one person to another, and is usually contracted in bath houses, shower baths, turkish baths, gymnasiums and from floors contaminated by infected individuals.

Ringworm usually affects the hands or the feet, but it may appear on other parts of the body. The involved area has patches of blisters which are red and angry-looking.

The disease is easily prevented by wearing shoes or slippers, and at a crowded beach it is a good plan to wear bathing shoes. This simple precaution will prevent much unnecessary suffering.

Ringworm should be treated by a physician, and early attention is important.

Most persons are negligent about their diet and manner of living during the summer months. Eating spoiled food, the incomplete chewing of food, excessive use of spices, or eating food difficult to digest frequently leads to another common skin condition known as "urticaria" or "hives." The prevention of this disease is easier than its cure.

"Impetigo contagiosa," not unlike ringworm of feet or hands, is another skin disorder commonly seen in summer. It usually afflicts children, and in adults it is known as "barber's itch."

This is an infectious disease that quickly spreads from one child to another. Yellowish patches of crusted sores appear on the face, and may spread to the chest and other parts of the body. The disease is rarely serious, and quickly responds to treatment when an antiseptic ointment is applied to the affected parts.

Many other skin disorders appear to be more prevalent in summer months, caused, as a rule, by carelessness.

The skin plays an important part in the mechanism of the body and should be cleansed every day. A daily warm bath followed by a cold shower will aid a lot in keeping the skin healthy.

BYRD'S SHIP AT FAIR

CHICAGO.—The "City of New York," three-masted sailing vessel that carried Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd and his crew to Little America on their expedition to the South Pole, has been brought here to be exhibited at the 1933 World's Fair. The polar ship was towed through the St. Lawrence and the Great Lakes.

The Daily Horoscope

Saturday, August 6, 1932

Unfavorable signs point to disturbance in the domestic circle this morning. The women folk will be careless in manners, with a disregard for the niceties of convention. The cultivation of a pleasant attitude and neatness about the home will offset criticism, whether deserved or not.

This is a day when one should be careful in choosing friends. A charming, lovable and sweet personality belong to the influence of the planet Venus, but as this planet is not now well placed, it becomes negative in its influence, therefore, modesty, fellow-feeling and parental obedience should be exercised. The color scehme in window display is not well directed by the stars today. Jewelry, draperies, pictures, millinery, toilet articles, home decorations, and flowers in the windows of stores will be lacking in taste and carefulness.

Advertisements should be ready for the public on this day. Positions secured under this aspect will likely prove beneficial.

Those prominent in the movie field, whether as directors or stars, should receive favorable publicity today. The public announcements will be re-assuring. Officials of the government will promote satisfactory financial means for the affairs of the nation.

It is also predicted that some influential person will receive much popularity and esteem through some suggested enterprise that will meet with accord.

Articles should be presented for publication at this time. Dealing with strangers and new customers, writing letters, answering advertisements; dealing with distributors, commission people, mail-order houses, chain stores, etc., will be satisfactory.

Children born on this day will be highly endowed and able to handle important problems that come up for decision. They will have their own way.

Alfred Tennyson 1809, famous English poet was born on this date. Among others who have celebrated it as a birthday is Walter Shirlaw, 1838, noted painter.

SUNDAY, AUGUST 7, 1932

Adverse aspects predominate today, and the vibrations tend to activity of a careless sort. There is likely to be a feeling of impatience and lack of interest combined with high tension. Useless conversation and promises may be made at random at this time and sudden resolutions adopted without premediated plans. When diplomacy is lacking complications usually follow. Much boldness to assert one's rights will take place. People will be fired with desire, but as the minds of many will not be equal to grapple with details nor be practical in methods, important matters may be overlooked, and confusion in the general arrangement of affairs will exist. Avoid all important decisions, make few promises, because unforseen circumstances may prevent the fulfillment of them. Ask for no information, nor express your convictions. Good manners, usual Sunday etiquette, poise and selfrestraint are likely to be lacking today.

Restlessness will be observed in church and other gatherings; speakers at lectures are likely to express themselves eccentrically, inharmony will prevail, and disputes arise. Configuations also point out the fact that advertisements will cause little attraction and replies to the want advertisements will be exaggerated.

Persons born between the tenth to fifteenth of April, July, October and January, will find this a strenuous and unpleasant Sunday.

Much difference of opinion in political circles will prevail today. High officials are likely to utter remarks that will excite public opinion.

Children born on this day are likely to be good-looking but will want their own way. A lack of tact will cause disturbances in the family life.

Charles Warren Stoddard, was born on this date in 1843. Among others who have celebrated it as a birthday is Joseph Rodman Drake, poet, 1795.

At the Circleville Theatres

AT THE CLIFTONA

Is "gent" a naughty, inferior word?

When Paramount named George Bancroft's latest picture, which comes to the Cliftona Theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, "Lady and Gent," it started something.

Was inelegance or coarseness implied by the use of "gent?" Was a humorous connotation intended? Or did the makers of the film merely mean to give their production a hearty, true-American flavor?

Whatever they intended, the five-century-old controversy over use of the word goes on. Dr. Frank Vizetelly, eminent specialist on the English language, would probably denounce it as inelegant. H. L. Mencken, editor of "The American Mercury" and author of a large treatise upon the language of Americans, would probably uphold it. There are hosts of others orthographers who take definite stands in the camps of either one or the other of these leading protagonists of today's spoken and written language.

AT THE GRAND

It may seem strange to have a hero and a heroine who detest one another throughout a picture—and stranger still when the heroine decides to marry another man at the conclusion—but these are only two of the unusual features of "Disorderly Conduct," the fearless and dramatic story of police adventure and politics which will open Sunday at the Grand Theatre with Sally Eilers, Spencer Tracey and El Brendel in the leading roles.

Heralded as one of the most powerful characterizations in talking pictures, Spencer Tracey's role—that of an ambitious motorcycle officer who goes wrong when political influence shatters his hopes of promotion—has created nation-wide comment. Ralp Bellamy, who scored so notably in "Surrender," is said to do even finer work in this offering as Tracey's commanding officer, and Sally Eilers portrays the new type of heroine.

Levity A Balance Wheel

IT is not recorded who first said "a little nonsense now and then is relished by the best of men." But whoever it was, he might with equal accuracy have observed that a great deal of nonsense is relished at any time by most men.

In business or pleasure, a laugh is as hungrily sought as anything else that may be on the program. The business of living is involved in so many hardships and worries that the most trivial nonsense helps to make life brighter and better.

Wit and humor lift the heart and serve as a tonic for many ills; and that is the reason the public has hung the words of such great humorists as Artemus Ward, Bill Nye and Mark Twain and forgotten those of serious-minded philosophers and statesmen.

People love to lose themselves in laughter and frivolity. Their souls cry out for laughter. It is their antidote for sorrows and troubles. If it is true that "only fools laugh for wise men see nothing laughable in life," then few wise men have been born since Schopenhauer wrote his "Studies in Pessimism."

It has been said that a sense of humor is a saving grace; but no two people seem to have the same sense of humor. Perhaps the best is that which enables one to see enough of the funny side of the experiences of life, tragic as some of them are, to laugh his way through difficulties and to perceive the laughable side of the thing when fate drives him through the briar patches.

A Huge Investment

WHY does the state provide free public education?

The state supports free schools to perpetuate itself and to promote its own interests. Education is a long-term investment that the country may be a better place in which to live and a better place in which to make a living.

Of the four means the state has in the past employed for its own perpetuation—war, the police force, social pressure and education—education is the sole means it has for presenting such knowledge and inculcating such attitudes as are necessary for maintaining the approved standards of living and raising them toward higher ideals.

The state, having made an investment of such magnitude, must in order to protect it and insure dividends on it see to it that the educative program keeps that end in view.

The state is doing what it can for the betterment of the individual, but in doing so it is looking to the betterment of society and its own salvation. It is that informing purpose which alone justifies its vast free system.

For good cause, then, do the people, who are the state, jealously guard the public schools, spend lavishly upon them and often, in their zeal, handicap them with ill-conceived laws and taboos.

Speed Is Relative

IDEAS of speed change with the means. A century ago an Ohio politician was booted off the stump because he stated as a fact that in England the new steam carriages could travel 20 miles an hour. His opponents ridiculed him and insisted that the human frame could not withstand such speed.

Writers of fiction 20 years ago described young daredevils traveling at the breath-taking and reckless speed of 15 miles in powerful racing automobiles.

Today persons never in the air think of a hundred miles an hour by airplane as somewhat slow. Sixty miles an hour recently a race track speed, is now within the powers of the cheapest and smallest automobile and is the cruising speed of many motorists.

This history of speed does not, however, carry the argument of some that a speed of as much as 100 miles an hour on main highways is entirely safe. The best of roads and motors are not enough to neutralize the increased danger due to human fallibility and inexperience. Perhaps the 1932 cars can travel at 70 or 80 with greater safety than 1912 models making 30 on the roads of that period, but the dangers are still there.

Railroad trains can travel faster than they do running on schedule time. They do not use their maximum speed because they have found a limit commensurate with safety. The average motorist determines his maximum speed by the same rule.

"EMBERS OF LOVE"

By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER FORTY

"A boy!" Nita Nahlman cried, bending over the bed in which Lily Lou and the little swaddled red thing lay. "And what have you named it?"

Lily Lou shook her head. She couldn't talk. She didn't want to ever try to talk again. Not even to tell Madame Nahlman to please not shake the bed. Every time anyone touched the bed a pain shot up from her temples and out through the top of her head. But it was easier to bear it than to try to talk.

The nursing sister made clucking noises as she rocked the babe she had taken from Lily Lou's unresisting arms.

"He is a sweet, adorable, darling thing!" the fur-coated prima donna crooned, leaning over the sister to get a better look.

Lily Lou shut her eyes. She was so tired.

When she opened them again Madame Nahlman was gone. The sweet faced night sister sat dozing by the window, her head sunk on her breast.

Lily Lou looked furtively for the baby. She hoped it wasn't in the room. When she saw it she wanted to cry, she couldn't remember why. So she closed her eyes again. It was better to sleep. Sleep, and forget.

They were always waking her. Always wanting to move her and straighten the sheets and plump the fat feather pillows. And they couldn't do a thing without talking. Talk! Talk! Talk! To her—though she couldn't understand a word—to each other—to the doctor—

There were two day sisters who came in and out, white-coiffed and aproned. One was rosy and wore glasses. And one was pale and did not wear glasses. The rosy one brought the baby to her, Lily Lou let it lie there in the crook of her arm, and kept her eyes shut. This, it seemed, was not pleasing to the rosy sister. She made clucking noises with her tongue, and talked at great length in German. Evidently all about the baby's charm.

The pale sister brought trays of food, and made clucking noises with her tongue also. Sometimes she became quite cross because Lily Lou wouldn't eat, and the word "Professor" was used to the accompaniment of a wagging forefinger. Professor seemed to be another name for Herr Doctor. Rather than risk the Professor's displeasure and further argument she always opened her mouth and swallowed what was offered. Then the sister would smile and nobody would bother her for a little while.

It was so good to be let alone. They let her alone so seldom. Always the fussing of the sisters. Their guttural whispers.

Pain that gnawed so that she tossed and twisted in a frenzy of feverish discomfort. Then the sharp thrust of a needle in her arm. Then sleep. Sleep that never lasted long enough. Sleep that began to elude her long before she wanted to wake. Sleep that cast out pain. Sleep that was forgetfulness. . . .

Into her forgetfulness the doctor forced himself, at intervals that had no time. Sometimes he was a dark silhouette against the sunshine of the window, and she knew it was day. Sometimes he was a shadow in the light of the lamp, and she knew that it was night.

"Don't you know me? Don't you remember what has happened?"

The doctor spoke English. Lily Lou wished that he did not. She always answered his questions as quickly as she could, so that he would go away again, and she could slip back to forgetfulness.

"Don't you know that you have a fine baby boy?"

Didn't she know? How could she forget? They wouldn't let her forget . . . that night in the apartment . . . one of the servants bringing him. Herr Doctor Sanders, from across the street.

Being put on a stretcher . . . strange faces . . . Krankenhaus . . . that meant hospital. . . . Agony that transcended time. . . . Sisters with blue dresses and thick white aprons like butchers wear. . . . Her own voice begging, begging for something. . . .

Broken, wracked, all her pride gone, crying out like a little animal that is terribly hurt. The spectacled face of Herr Doctor Sanders, the pupils of his eyes immense behind thick lenses. . . .

And then the thing over her face, and the sharp, sudden fear of the dark into which she was rushing . . . rushing . . . hurtling into bits. Oblivion . . . blessed oblivion. . . . But they wouldn't let her have it, they kept calling her back, the sisters with their trays and their medicines, the spectacled Herr Doctor Sanders.

Madame Nahlman, too. Lily Lou saw her, beaming from the foot of the bed, sometimes. Saw her bringing flowers that smelled too sweet, dainties she couldn't possibly eat, letters that she didn't want to read.

Sometimes she picked up the letters, and set them down again listlessly. What could anyone have to say that would matter to her now? She fingered two thick envelopes from Woodlake, addressed in her mother's pedagogic hand. . . . What did her mother have to do with her now? Her mother was writing to a girl who was studying to be an opera star, not to this sick woman she had turned into. . . .

She put the letters down unopened. Tears welled under her tightly closed lids, rolled down her cheeks.

"Tech! Tech!" The rosy day nurse was right at her side with a big white handkerchief. They wouldn't even let her cry. Lily Lou bit her lip, lay silent, pretending to sleep.

Bustling. Creaking of the rosy sister's starched skirts. More clucking noises. Bubchen! The rosy sister was bringing the baby, to comfort her . . . to comfort her! How funny! How terribly, ghastly funny!

Lily Lou turned her face toward the wall. The little head was dark and silky, but there was something ab . . . it, about the ears.

"Take it away, please," she begged. "Please take it away, Schwester!"

The sister bustled forward, and right at her heels came Susanne Coin who had probably been in the room right along. Nobody ever asked if they might come in, nobody cared whether she wanted to see them or not, they just came.

"Hello," she said, making the effort because it was Susanne's first visit, trying not to mind when Susanne kissed her on both cheeks.

"The sweet baby. Do let me hold him, Schwester. Oh, the darling! How lucky you are!"

Lily Lou cast a suspicious glance from under her lashes. . . . Lucky? She?

"How happy you will be now!" Susanne said earnestly, her pleasant pink face alight with interest. "Think of it, a son! I myself have desired a son. I want to be a mother, I adore motherhood."

Lily Lou shut her eyes. The old trick of pretending to sleep.

"Madame Nahlman sent the flowers. Do you like them? Now tell me what you have named the baby?"

"I haven't named it yet."

"It! You're the first mother I ever heard call her child it! Really, Miss Lansing—"

"Robin, I think. Yes, I'll call it—him—Robin."

"Well! That's better! After his—"

"After no one. I always liked the name, that's all. Robin — Robin Lansing—"

That settled she dropped her eyes again. Lay there motionless, her black hair a somber frame for her pallid face, dark lashes mercifully veiling tell-tale eyes.

Susanne Coin stood with the infant in her arms, rocking him gently.

"Would you like to have him adopted? By a good rich Swiss family? They could give him a good home. Perhaps better than you, who will soon be singing again—"

She broke off, as the sister, with a little cry, elbowed past her to the bed.

Lily Lou was not faking oblivion this time. Her jaw had dropped. She was staring straight at Susanne Coin with eyes that were already glazed and sightless.

* * * *

"I could give him away," she told the rosy sister who was trying to coax her to drink something out of a glass tube, "if it weren't for his ears. His ears are like Ken's. I saw that the first thing. That's why I didn't want to look at him. That was why. You didn't understand, did you?"

She beat her thin, veined hands together with a hopeless gesture. They didn't speak English here. That was the trouble. She used to know some German, but she couldn't remember any today. She tried again, speaking very slowly and distinctly:

"I could give him away to Susanne Coin if he weren't like Ken that way. I don't want to look at him, but I can't help it. I've got to keep him. I can't give him away to that nice Swiss family. I've given away too much. I let them take Ken away from me, and it was wrong. I shouldn't have let them. I should have kept Ken, and my wedding ring. I left it on the table in the hall. It was made of diamonds, but on the inside it said 'Ken to Lily Lou, forever and ever.' Do you understand? Forever and ever, but I let his father tell me . . ."

"Shh! Schlafen sie—"

Sleep! When she wanted to they wouldn't let her, and now . . .

Skin Disorders Common in Summer Very Often Due to Carelessnes

Ringworm, Resulting From Infection at Bathing Beaches, and Hives, Caused by Improper Diet, Are Both Much Easier to Prevent Than They Are to Cure.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

THAT a clean, clear and healthy skin is a valuable asset no one will question.

During the summer months skin disorders are more common than at any other time of the year. The sweat glands are more active in hot weather and the skin is more liable to infection. Today I want to tell you about a few of the summer skin diseases and how to prevent them.

Dr. Copeland

Within the last few years sun baths have become extremely popular. Taken properly sun baths are beneficial, but too much exposure to the sun is harmful, for serious results may follow severe burning. Infection of the skin is a frequent complication of neglected sunburn, for the protective covering of the skin is destroyed by excessive exposure to the sun, and this permits the entrance of germs and parasites.

Some persons burn more quickly than others. Blondes and red-headed persons are more sensitive to the sun than brunettes. When the skin is moist, it burns easily.

If you desire a healthy tan, acquire it slowly, deriving the beneficial action of the sun without harm to the sensitive skin layers.

Ringworm is a common infection of the skin that is particularly prevalent during the summer months. It is a highly infectious disease, easily transmitted from one person to another, and is usually contracted in bath houses, shower baths, turkish baths, gymnasiums and from floors contaminated by infected individuals.

Ringworm usually affects the hands or the feet, but it may appear on other parts of the body. The involved area has patches of blisters which are red and angry-looking.

The disease is easily prevented by wearing shoes or slippers, and at a crowded beach it is a good plan to wear bathing shoes. This simple precaution will prevent much unnecessary suffering.

Ringworm should be treated by a physician, and early attention is important.

Most persons are negligent about their diet and manner of living during the summer months. Eating spoiled food, the incomplete chewing of food, excessive use of spices, or eating food difficult to digest frequently leads to another common skin condition known as "urticaria" or "hives." The prevention of this disease is easier than its cure.

"Impetigo contagiosa," not unlike ringworm of feet or hands, is another skin disorder commonly seen in summer. It usually afflicts children, and in adults it is known as "barber's itch."

This is an infectious disease that quickly spreads from one child to another. Yellowish patches of crusted sores appear on the face, and may spread to the chest and other parts of the body. The disease is rarely serious, and quickly responds to treatment when an antiseptic ointment is applied to the affected parts.

Many other skin disorders appear to be more prevalent in summer months, caused, as a rule, by carelessness.

The skin plays an important part in the mechanism of the body and should be cleansed every day. A daily warm bath followed by a cold shower will aid a lot in keeping the skin healthy.

The Daily Horoscope

Saturday, August 6, 1932

Unfavorable signs point to disturbance in the domestic circle this morning. The women folk will be careless in manners, with a disregard for the niceties of convention. The cultivation of a pleasant attitude and neatness about the home will offset criticism, whether deserved or not.

This is a day when one should be careful in choosing friends. A charming, lovable and sweet personality belong to the influence of the planet Venus, but as this planet is not now well placed, it becomes negative in its influence; therefore, modesty, fellow-feeling and parental obedience should be exercised. The color scehme in window display is not well directed by the stars today. Jewelry, draperies, pictures, millinery, toilet articles, home decorations, and flowers in the windows of stores will be lacking in taste and carefulness.

Advertisements should be ready for the public on this day. Positions secured under this aspect will likely prove beneficial.

Those prominent in the movie field whether as directors or stars, should receive favorable publicity today. The public announcements will be re-assuring. Officials of the government will promote satisfactory financial means for the affairs of the nation.

It is also predicted that some influential person will receive much popularity and esteem through some suggested enterprise that will meet with accord.

Articles should be presented for publication at this time. Dealing with strangers and new customers, writing letters, answering advertisements, dealing with distributors, commission people, mail-order houses, chain stores, etc., will be satisfactory.

Children born on this day will be highly endowed and able to handle important problems that come up for decision. They will have their own way.

Alfred Tennyson 1809, famous English poet was born on this date. Among others who have celebrated it as a birthday is Walter Shirlaw, 1838, noted painter.

(Copyrighted by William Ashley Johnson for Midwest Feature Service.)

SUNDAY, AUGUST 7, 1932

Adverse aspects predominate today, and the vibrations tend to activity of a careless sort. There is likely to be a feeling of impatience and lack of interest combined with high tension. Useless conversation and promises may be made at random at this time and sudden resolutions adopted without premediated plans. When diplomacy is lacking complications usually follow. Much boldness to assert one's rights will take place. People will be fired with desire, but as the minds of many will not be equal to grapple with details nor be practical in methods, important matters may be overlooked, and confusion in the general arrangement of affairs will exist. Avoid all important decisions, make few promises, because unforseen circumstances may prevent the fulfillment of them. Ask for no information, nor express your convictions. Good manners, usual Sunday etiquette, poise and selfrestraint are likely to be lacking today.

Restlessness will be observed in church and other gatherings; speakers at lectures are likely to express themselves eccentrically, inharmony will prevail, and disputes arise. Conflagrations also point out the fact that advertisements will cause little attraction and replies to the want advertisements will be exaggerated.

Persons born between the tenth to fifteenth of April, July, October and January, will find this a strenuous and unpleasant Sunday.

Much difference of opinion in political circles will prevail today. High officials are likely to utter remarks that will excite public opinion.

Children born on this day are likely to be good-looking but will want their own way. A lack of tact will cause disturbances in the family life.

Charles Warren Stoddard, was born on this date in 1843. Among others who have celebrated it as a birthday is Joseph Rodman Drake, poet, 1795.

At the Circleville Theatres

AT THE CLIFTONA

Is "gent" a naughty, inferior word?

When Paramount named George Bancroft's latest picture, which comes to the Cliftona Theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, "Lady and Gent," it started something.

Was inelegance or coarseness implied by the use of "gent?" Was a humorous connotation intended? Or did the makers of the film merely mean to give their production a hearty, true-American flavor?

Whatever they intended, the five-century-old controversy over use of the word goes on. Dr. Frank Vizetelly, eminent specialist on the English language, would probably denounce it as inelegant. H. L. Mencken editor of "The American Mercury" and author of a large treatise upon the language of Americans, would probably uphold it. There are hosts of others orthographers who take definite stands in the camps of either one or the other of these leading protagonists of today's spoken and written language.

AT THE GRAND

It may seem strange to have a hero and a heroine who detest one another throughout a picture—and stranger still when the heroine decides to marry another man at the conclusion—but these are only two of the unusual features of "Disorderly Conduct," the fearless and dramatic story of police adventure and politics which will open Sunday at the Grand Theatre with Sally Eilers, Spencer Tracey and El Brendel in the leading roles.

Heralded as one of the most powerful characterizations in talking pictures, Spencer Tracey's role—that of an ambitious motorcycle officer who goes wrong when political influence shatters his hopes of promotion—has created nation-wide comment. Ralp Bellamy, who scored so notably in "Surrender," is said to do even finer work in this offering as Tracey's commanding officer, and Sally Eilers portrays the new type of heroine.

Horace Wright, editor of the Anniston (Ala.) Star, says:

"Every person believes in advertising, although some will say they do not.

"A merchant may decline to advertise his business, maintaining that it would not pay, but let him be placed in charge of the arrangements for some function and he immediately goes to the newspaper for help in getting it before the public. He believes in advertising, but will not admit it. Therefore, we say that everybody believes in advertising, unconsciously, perhaps, in some cases, but firmly nevertheless.

"If a person tells you he does not believe in advertising, ask him to take stock in himself. Doubtless he does not know his own mind in this matter or is not honest enough to speak his convictions.

"Ask him why everybody, men and women, young and old, is smoking cigarets today, whereas a generation ago the person addicted to that habit was pointed out to the young boy as a horrible example of depraved tastes and degeneration. The answer is advertising.

"What is it that fills the motion picture theatre- It is the advertising given the picture in advance of the show. The people do not seek the show today, with radio, automobiles and other diversions for competition. The show must seek the people.

"Why do nine out of ten men who shave themselves today use a safety razor while our fathers and grandfathers stuck to the trusty straight-edge for the weekly grooming process and would have scoffed at the suggestion that they use one of those 'new-fangled dojiggers?'

"One may say that one does not believe in advertising, but the facts are there, indisputably plain. And the actions of the would-be doubter always belie his words."

A GLASS IN HAND WORTH TWO ON BAR

DETROIT.— A place may look like a speakeasy and smell like one, but it takes more than mere observation of those facts to make a prohibition case.

M. F. Parks, dry agent, testified in federal court here he visited a bar operated by Frank Jaksha, and saw men drinking what appeared to him to be beer. Jaksha, not knowing Parks, would sell him no drinks, but was arrested anyway.

Federal Judge E. A. O'Brien dismissed Jaksha because Parks failed a make a purchase.

Blessings Of The Depression

EDITOR'S NOTE Following is the third and last sermon on the depression delivered by Rev. George L. Troutman of Trinity Lutheran church The series was very enlightening to all who heard it.

"THE BLESSINGS OF THE DEPRESSION"

Romans 8:28

Undoubtedly many of you have asked either in thought or in word, Can there be any blessings derived from this depression? Can we really give thanks to God at all? There are doubtless in our own county, farmers, who in some instances have not even so much as harvested the seed which they sowed; working men who have vainly sought even part time employment, business men who have experienced financial disappointments and reverse unparalleled in their career. Can we honestly say we have been blessed and should give thanks?

What does the Bible say?—Here are the words of divine and heavenly wisdom—"In everything give thanks," and that means, that if we today pause to take inventory of the blessings that have been showered upon us, we must come to the unavoidable conclusion, that even in these days of depression, God's mercy and tender kindness are beyond the power of measurement and computation.

OTHERS DIFFERENT

Foreign visitors to our shores, who have found the tranquillity of the nation disturbed by the hard times of which we hear so much, tell us that the U. S. does not really know what hard times are and that the comforts which we enjoy even in this period of depression are relatively so tremendous that they fairly overwhelm the people of other nations. We speak of our draught two years ago, but let me point you to the indescribable sorrows that have engulfed the vast areas of China. For 4 years uncounted millions have suffered from draught which combined with war, has brought about the most distressed period in the history of China, perhaps even in the history of the world. Eyewitnesses tell us that whole villages desperately endeavored to keep alive by devouring leaves, scraping the bark off trees and mixing grass roots and chaff with earth and clay. In one province alone 80,000 women and girls sold themselves into slavery for life in order to ward off the pangs of this gnawing hunger. We speak of unemployment, but think of Europe today and the countries that have not enjoyed a year of real normal industry and employment since the conclusion of the World War. Countries with governmental dissension, destructive labor troubles, chronic communistic rebellions, all emphasize the most striking contrast between the Old World and the blessings which we enjoy here in the New.

OTHERS BAFFLED

Do you know that there is no people on earth that has the variety and the quantity and the quality of food that graces the average American table, three times every day? The London Daily Mail sometime ago called attention to the fact that, while the white population of the U S is about twice as large as that of Great Britain, the U. S. has not only twice as many telephones and automobiles as Great Britain but 15 times as many Tho we speak of hard times we all have our comfortable home, our radio, our musical instruments, our jewels, our expensive clothing, our endless catalogue of luxuries in such a measure that poverty pinched people of other nations are baffled to hear us say, 'depression.' Surveying all this we must say, in spite of America's gross sinfulness God has not as yet completely withheld his bountifulness.

My dear Friends, to the Christian this is a blessed depression For our text tells us "All things work together for good to them that love God." With absolute trust in these words of scripture, let us with the eye of faith, earnestly look for some of the blessings of this depression

In the first place, it is teaching us economy. European countries, during the period of prosperity, reminded America of its tremendous waste. In fact it is said: that enough food went into the American garbage cans to feed another nation. But today in the average American home the common virtues of economy and thrift are being exercised as never before. With our touch of poverty, not so much food is going into the refuge cans. Partially worn shoes and clothing are not so readily discarded and new ones so extravagantly purchased. We are learning to do with out some luxuries, in fact many thing that America in its extravagance was prone to regard as necessities, today are looked upon as luxuries. Not only have we learned to do without many luxuries, but another lesson in economy that we have gleaned from this depression, is that of looking into the future. The need of laying up for a rainy day, we need only look at the millions of individuals, who during the period of prosperity lived extravagantly from day to day without the slightest thought of a future depression and today with pressing time are forced to beg, or depend upon benevolent institutions.

Is economy a commendable virtue? It most certainly is, for Jesus again and again denounced the sin of wastefulness and extravagance and strikingly taught the principles of economy. When after Jesus had abundantly fed the 5,000 with 5 barley loaves and two small fishes, he told the disciples to gather up the fragments that none be lost.

We are also told that this depression is bringing about more life. With no ready money at hand, people cannot spend every evening at places of amusement, but are compelled to spend more time at home. This cannot help but foster a more wholesome homelife, a closer contact between parents and children, which certainly is greatly needed today. How often it has been said and with what credibility, that the American home has become nothing more than a modern hotel, merely a place to eat and sleep. This closer homelife, affords opportunities to rededicate the family altar and reestablish family worship in the home.

THIRD BLESSING

A third major blessing that we can plainly see is man's elevated attitude toward work. Man today prizes work, is grateful for it. We all remember how, during the period of prosperity, work was looked upon as a necessary evil, with high wages and plenty of work man was very indifferent. But what a contrast we have today, work is looked upon as a blessing, any job is honorable. And I dare say, man is doing his best for fear he will lose the means of obtaining, for himself and his family, the necessary daily bread. Putting work on an honorable basis is as God wants it. For in the very days of creation, God told men that he should work for he said: "Dress the garden and keep it," Jesus in the New Testament, gives us, stated example; "I came to do the work of him that sent me. Despising work is a sin, and I say with this present depression God is blowing away this chaff from our nation." Has He succeeded in your case?

Furthermore this depression is making the American people more serious minded. With all our endless resources and opportunities, America had become so flippant, so frivolous that Europe was obliged to term us, A giant with a child's mind. Recent records taken from leading libraries snow that today people are reading more good, sensible, uplifing books, that the American people are making good use of their leisure time by wholesome study, in preparation for better service. Not only has there been a back to school movement, but there has also been a general back to God movement Churches where accurate records have been kept tell us that there has been an astounding increase in church attendance and church membership. People are seeking God and searching the scriptures to find the cause for their present trouble, and are through prayer finding God as their only deliverance If such is the case then truly America is finding the one and only cure for her present condition.

Thus far we have spoken merely of the temporal blessings that are being realized from our depression, but there remains for our consideration a much greater issue, namely; the eternal blessings.

"MAN'S BLESSINGS"

Man's greatest blessings, those to be realized in eternity, depend upon His reaction to God's disciplinary means We find one group of individuals who have given themselves over to fate They have simply given up for the present and are just waiting for prosperity to return In a second group we find those who murmur and soured on the world; disgusted with everything. Like the Israelites of old, they even murmur against God their creator. They rail against the church, benevolent and charitable institutions. In their state of utter despair, they delude theirselves into thinking that they can end it all by committing suicide, when in reality they damn their precious souls to everlasting perdition."

The third group consists of the true Christian who relying on God's word which saith: "What I do thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter." And that other comforting promise, "All things work together for good to them that love God." The Christian looks not backward, but into the future, pressing ever onward to the goal of eternal salvation. With the eye of faith and through earnest prayer he seeks to see the silver thread in this dark cloud of depression.

Remember I am speaking this morning especially to those of you who may feel in moments of human weakness, that God has dealt unkindly with you, to you who are heartsick over your financial condition, to you who must live on under the blight of some consuming sorrow that, incessantly gnaws away at your happiness and peace of mind. If you are a true child of God, you must see for example; that the money which you lost in stocks or bonds may have been taken away to prevent your using it for unworthy or sinful purposes: that the poverty which you must suffer comes from the beneficient hand of God to give you greater occasion to reflect upon the serious side of your life, your soul's salvation; that the unemployment of business disappointments may be designed to strengthen your character; that literally all things work together in blessed cooperation for your eternal good.

ARE DISGUISED

Just as the surgeon cauterizes a wound, cuts away proud flesh to alleviate the process of healing, so the fires of affliction, the incisions of misfortune often are but disguised blessings which clear the way for better and happier eternal things. You know that the purest gold is the metal that has been refined in the hottest flame. Steel that is tempered in the blazing crucible gains in strength and value. The diamond must be cut and ground and polished, to sparkle in its fiery radiance. So with Christian character there must be conflict and resistance to strengthen, to bring out those qualities which mark the victorious life that lives in Christ Jesus.

So this morning to you who worry about your daily bread, your work, your health, the needs of your family; to you for whom the future looks black and dismal, to you who wants the tomorrow to be larger and better spiritually and morally, I bring not an economic program, not a partisan appeal, but this promise of trumphant truth, this death defeating, life bringing word of divine comfort by which FAITH faces the future. "If God be for us who can be against us."

AMEN.

J. A. ABERNETHY WEDS DOROTHY SHEERAN

The marriage of Miss Dorothy Sheeran, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Sherran, 645 Fairwood-ave., Columbus, and Mr. John A. Abernethy, son of Mrs. Marie Abernethy, 1504 N. Fourth-st, Columbus, a former resident of this city, was solemnized at eight o'clock Saturday morning in Holy Rosary church, Columbus.

Rev. John J. Murphy, pastor, read the nuptial service in the presence of the families and a few close friends.

Miss Martha Sherran, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Mr. Henry Abernethy, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man.

For her wedding Miss Sheeran wore a powder blue crepe dress made with a short jacket having long tight sleeves. With it she wore a shell pink French felt hat and slippers and short gloves to match. Her arm bouquet was of garden flowers in pastel shades.

The maid of honor was attired in a frock of yellow summer crepe. Her hat was of nile green French felt and she wore slippers and short sleeves of thee same color. She carried an arm bouquet of garden flowers in pastel shades.

Following the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was given at the Neil House for members of the bridal party.

Mr. Abernethy and his bride left on a short motor trip through the Great Lakes region. Upon their return they will reside in Lima, where Mr. Abernethy is affiliated with the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co.

Mr. Abernethy, a graduate of Circleville high school, is a former student of St. Xavier and Notre Dame universities.

Guests attending the wedding from this city were Mrs. David Dunlap, Miss Elizabeth Dunlap, Robert Smith, Gardner Wilder, Misses Marion and Helen Hitler and Miss Emily Yates.

Blessings Of The Depression

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is the third and last sermon on the depression delivered by Rev. George L. Troutman of Trinity Lutheran church. The serics was very enlightening to all who heard it.

"THE BLESSINGS OF THE DEPRESSION"
Romans 8:28

Undoubtedly many of you have asked either in thought or in word, Can there be any blessings derived from this depression? Can we really give thanks to God at all? There are doubtless in our own county, farmers, who in some instances have not even so much as harvested the seed which they sowed; working men who have vainly sought even part time employment; business men who have experienced financial disappointments and reverse unparalleled in their career. Can we honestly say we have been blessed and should give thanks?

What does the Bible say?—Here are the words of divine and heavenly wisdom—"In everything give thanks," and that means, that if we today pause to take inventory of the blessings that have been showered upon us, we must come to the unavoidable conclusion, that even in these days of depression, God's mercy and tender kindness are beyond the power of measurement and computation.

OTHERS DIFFERENT

Foreign visitors to our shores, who have found the tranquillity of the nation disturbed by the hard times of which we hear so much, tell us that the U. S. does not really know what hard times are and that the comforts which we enjoy even in this period of depression are relatively so tremendous that they fairly overwhelm the people of other nations. We speak of our draught two years ago, but let me point you to the indescribable sorrows that have engulfed the vast areas of China. For 4 years uncounted millions have suffered from draught which combined with war, has brought about the most distressed period in the history of China, perhaps even in the history of the world. Eyewitnesses tell us that whole villages desperately endeavored to keep alive by devouring leaves, scraping the bark off trees and mixing grass roots and chaff with earth and clay. In one province alone 80,000 women and girls sold themselves into slavery for life in order to ward off the pangs of this gnawing hunger. We speak of unemployment, but think of Europe today and the countries that have not enjoyed a year of real normal industry and employment since the conclusion of the World War. Countries with governmental dissension, destructive labor troubles, chronic communistic rebellions, all emphasize the most striking contrast between the Old World and the blessings which we enjoy here in the New.

OTHERS BAFFLED

Do you know that there is no people on earth that has the variety and the quantity and the quality of food that graces the average American table, three times every day? The London Daily Mail sometime ago called attention to the fact that, while the white population of the U. S. is about twice as large as that of Great Britain, the U. S. has not only twice as many telephones and automobiles as Breat Britain, but 15 times as many. Tho we speak of hard times we all have our comfortable home, our radio, our musical instruments, our jewels, our expensive clothing, our endless catalogue of luxuries in such a measure that poverty pinched people of other nations are baffled to hear us say, "depression." Surveying all this we must say in spite of America's gross sinfulness God has not as yet completely withheld his bountifulness.

My dear Friends, to the Christian, this is a blessed depression. For our text tells us: "All things work together for good to them that love God." With absolute trust in these words of scripture, let us with the eye of faith, earnestly look for some of the blessings of this depression.

In the first place, it is teaching us economy. European countries, during the period of prosperty, reminded America of its tremendous waste. In fact it is said; that enough food went into the American garbage cans to feed another nation. But today in the average American home the common virtues of economy and thrift are being exercised as never before. With our touch of poverty, not so much food is going into the refuge cans. Partially worn shoes and chothing are not so readily discarded and new ones so extravagantly purchased. We are learning to do with out some luxuries, in fact many thing that America in its extravagance was prone to regard as necessities, today are looked upon as luxuries. Not only have we learned to do without many luxuries, but another lesson in economy that we have gleaned from this depression, is that of looking into the future. The need of laying up for a rainy day, we need only look at the millions of individuals, who during the period of prosperity lived extravagantly from day to day without the slightest thought of a future depression and today with pressing time are forced to beg, or depend upon benevolent institutions.

Is economy a commendable virtue? It most certainly is, for Jesus again and again denounced the sin of wastefulness and extravagance and strikingly taught the principles of economy. When after Jesus had abundantly fed the 5,000 with 5 barley loaves and two small fishes, he told the disciples to gather up the fragments that none be lost.

We are also told that this depression is bringing about more life. With no ready money at hand, people cannot spend every evening at places of amusement, but are compelled to spend more time at home. This cannot help but foster a more wholesome homelife, a closer contact between parents and children, which certainly is greatly needed today. How often it has been said and with what credibility, that the American home has become nothing more than a modern hotel, merely a place to eat and sleep. This closer homelife, affords opportunities to rededicate the family altar and reestablish family worship in the home .

THIRD BLESSING

A third major blessing that we can plainly see is man's elevated attitude toward work. Man today prizes work, is grateful for it. We all remember how, during the period of prosperity, work was looked upon as a necessary evil, with high wages and plenty of work man was very indifferent. But what a contrast we have today, work is looked upon as a blessing, any job is honorable. And I dare say, man is doing his best for fear he will lose the means of obtaining, for himself and his family, the necessary daily bread. Putting work on an honorable basis is as God wants it. For in the very days of creation, God told men that he should work for he said: "Dress the garden and keep it," Jesus in the New Testament, gives us, stated example; "I came to do the work of him that sent me. Despising work is a sin, and I say with this present depression God is blowing away this chaff from our nation." Has He succeeded in your case?

Furthermore this depression is making the American people more serious minded. With all our endless resources and opportunities, America had become so flippant, so frivolous that Europe was obliged to term us, A giant with a child's mind. Recent records taken from leading libraries snow that today people are reading more good, sensible, uplifing books, that the American people are making good use of their leisure time by wholesome study, in preparation for better service. Not only has there been a back to school movement, but there has also been a general back to God movement. Churches where accurate records have been kept tell us that there has been an astounding increase in church attendance and church membership. People are seeking God and searching the scriptures to find the cause for their present trouble, and are through prayer finding God as their only deliverance. If such is the case then truly America is finding the one and only cure for her present condition.

Thus far we have spoken merely of the temporal blessings that are being realized from our depression, but there remains for our consideration a much greater issue, namely; the eternal blessings.

"MAN'S BLESSINGS"

Man's greatest blessings, those to be realized in eternity, depend upon His reaction to God's disciplinary means. We find one group of individuals who have given themselves over to fate. They have simply given up for the present and are just waiting for prosperity to return. In a second group we find those who murmur and soured on the world; disgusted with everything. Like the Israelites of old, they even murmur against God their creator. They rail against the church, benevolent and charitable institutions. In their state of utter despair, they delude theirselves into thinking that they can end it all by committing suicide, when in reality they damn their precious souls to everlasting perdition."

The third group consists of the true Christian who relying on God's word which saith: "What I do thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter." And that other comforting promise, "All things work together for good to them that love God." The Christian looks not backward, but into the future, pressing ever onward to the goal of eternal salvation. With the eye of faith and through earnest prayer he seeks to see the silver thread in this dark cloud of depression.

Remember I am speaking this morning especially to those of you who may feel in moments of human weakness, that God has dealt unkindly with you, to you who are heartsick over your financial condition, to you who must live on under the blight of some consuming sorrow that, incessantly gnaws away at your happiness and peace of mind. So this morning to you who worry about your daily bread, your work, your health, the needs of your family; to you for whom the future looks black and dismal, to you who wants the tomorrow to be larger and better spiritually and morally, I bring not an economic program, not a partisan appeal, but this promise of trumphant truth, this death defeating, life bringing word of divine comfort by which FAITH faces the future. "If God be for us who can be against us."

AMEN.
